Canada Told:

Export Plan 'Crazy'

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States took issue Friday with the Canadian government's proposal to expand Canada's automotive production either by increasing the U.S. market for Canadian automobile factory products or reducing Canadian automotive imports.

"We don't like it and we put up a damn good case against it," said Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges as the joint Canada-U.S. cabinet conference adjourned for two dinner meetings.

PLAN "SCREWY"

Another high U.S. source described the Canadian plan as "screwy" and said "it sounds more like Mexico than Canada."

C. M. Drury, defence production minister, later conceded in talks with reporters that he had failed to make his case for the Canadian plan during closed-door sessions of the economic and trade conference. But he said he would return to the task of trying to persuade the Americans the plan had merit.

PAYMENTS BROKEN

"If the U.S. takes the position there should be no reduction in sales to Canada or no increase in sales to the U.S. then there is no possibility of anything being done on our balance of payments problem."

Canada, he said, has a trade deficit with the U.S. amounting to some $850,000,000 a year. Canada had to do something to reduce this deficit and the step that had to be taken would be "something less than reciprocity" in trade with the U.S. Otherwise, Canada would not be able to achieve a reduction.

OPEN DOOR OR ELSE

Under the Canadian manufacturing expansion plan, as outlined by Drury, the U.S., as Canada's top market, either would have to open its doors wider to Canadian manufactured goods or Canada would have to impose restrictions on imports from the U.S.

Hodges suggested that if Canada wants to reduce its international payments deficit by expanding exports, it should call an export conference, such as the White House conference held earlier this week, "and offer us goods."

To this, Drury later remarked: "What would the Americans like us to export to them? Tropical fruits?"

Ontario Teen-Ager

Search Army Of 10,000 Out Today

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI)—Search organizers hope to enlist an army of 10,000 volunteers today to comb the Bowmanville area for missing 13-year-old Noreen Greenley.

The girl disappeared last Saturday night while walking the short distance between the home of a girlfriend and her house in nearby Maple Grove. The search to date has failed to turn up a clue and her father, Harvey Greenley, believes "someone has got her."

Some 400 volunteers, aided by two aircraft, combed a 15-square mile area Thursday in a driving rainstorm and an equal number turned out Friday.

TWO GROUPS

The hunt is being organized by the Ontario provincial police and the emergency measures organization.

Workers at the General Motors plant in Oshawa, where the girl's father is employed, are expected to turn out in large numbers along with Boy Scouts and "almost every resident of Maple Grove." The father hopes to obtain hunting dogs to aid in the search.

BIG MILL POND

A pump was used as searchers began to drain a 30-acre mill pond near Lake Ontario.

The girl was last seen after leaving her friend's home and her father believes she was abducted by a stranger in a car. Her mother described her as "quiet and shy" and said she would never accept a ride with a stranger.

Baby Saved

Phone Girl Heroine

OTTAWA (CP) — A panic-stricken mother saved her infant son's life by following instructions from a telephone operator on how to administer artificial respiration.

The mother, Mrs. Leo Sabourin of Ottawa, discovered her five-month-old son Christopher apparently lifeless in his crib with his face pressed against a plastic bib.

She carried the infant to a downstairs telephone, dialed operator Mrs. Judy Dallaire, 21, for help and followed instructions from the alert operator, who, from memory, gave her a step-by-step procedure for mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration.

Mrs. Dallaire simultaneously summoned help, but by the time it arrived, the child already was regaining consciousness.

Ottawa Word Coming

The Social Credit government expects an announcement from Ottawa on the Columbia River development immediately after the Sept. 30 election, Recreation Minister Westwood told a rally of 25 spectators in Ladysmith last night.

Regarding the Peace River project he said "B.C. will be faced with a blackout by 1968" if the development does not proceed.

"Extra power is urgently needed to develop B.C. natural resources," he said, "besides providing the cheapest power development in the world."

Bennett Vs. Hecklers

INTEGRITY KEY ISSUE

By TERRY HAMMOND

Premier Bennett told the biggest and roughest meeting of the 1963 election campaign in Victoria's Royal Theatre last night that, if any B.C. political party has integrity, it is his.

He lashed out at Tory Leader Fulton for the appointment to a judgeship of one of his former law partners and said Liberals and Conservatives had governed B.C. by secret orders-in-council while the socialists stood idly by and let them do it.

"To keep this secret is a crime and a disgrace against democracy.

"In 22 years representing South Okanagan my business has not done one cent of business with the government departments — not one cent," he thundered.

SPECIAL LIST

He said previous governments had allocated business by special list while his had eliminated patronage.

His speech was constantly interrupted by hecklers among the 1,350 people who all but filled the theatre. The crowd was about 300 smaller than at his Victoria rally in 1960, but that was his final pre-election meeting.

NEVER WILL

"We have never yielded to a pressure group yet and as long as I am premier we never will," he said.

"That's what Sommers told me the other day," shouted a heckler, referring to the former forest minister convicted on bribery charges in 1958.

The premier ignored the sally.

He said the government has appointed people to various jobs without thought to their political beliefs.

SOME GOOD

"Yes, down the list the odd Social Crediter has been given a job because, believe it or not, there are some good Social Crediters."

It was the premier's fourth speech of the campaign and the third in which he has made no major pledges of new projects or policies. In West Vancouver Wednesday he said

Troika Goes To Court

CLEVELAND (AP) —Edgar Dalleyer of Hampden, Mass., filed a $250,000 damage suit in U.S. district court Friday against Cyrus Eaton, contending he was injured while riding in the Canadian-born Cleveland industrialist's Russian troika last year.

The troika, a carriage pulled by three horses, was a gift to Eaton from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Joint Moon Shot Urged by JFK

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — President Kennedy suggested Friday that the Soviet Union and the United States combine talents in a joint expedition to the moon.

"Why . . . should man's first flight to the moon be a matter of national competition?" he asked in a policy speech before the United Nations General Assembly.

"Why should the United States and the Soviet Union, in preparing for such expeditions, become involved in immense duplications of research, construction and expenditure?"

NEW JOINT EFFORTS

Kennedy made the moon-flight suggestion in calling for new joint efforts by the two big powers in the space field.

He said he was encouraged by the statement of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to the assembly Thursday on banning nuclear weapons in space.

AGREES WITH PEARSON

He also echoed the view of Canada's Prime Minister Pearson Thursday that the UN force should be kept in The Congo past the end of this year.

And, apparently referring to Canada and the Scandinavian countries, he said he hoped that "the recent initiative of several members in preparing standby peace forces for UN call will encourage similar commitments by others. This nation remains ready to provide logistic and other material support."

After the speech, Kennedy and Pearson were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Secretary-General U Thant. The 50

Gromyko Pleased

Speech Praised By Reds, West

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Delegates from Communist countries as well as the free world Friday reacted warmly to President Kennedy's speech to the United Nations General Assembly.

"It was a very good speech," said Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko. "It was conciliatory and it seems to give hope for further agreement."

Sir Patrick Dean, head of the British delegation, called the address "moving and inspiring."

Ambassador Muhammad Zafrullah Khan of Pakistan, last year's president of the General Assembly, said: "This is a real leadership speech . . . President Kennedy is a good speaker but this speech is his best."

Ambassador B. N. Chakravarty of India said the speech was "excellent, effective."

"He has given us lines to follow and much food for thought," he said, "especially through those passages concerning disarmament and international trade . . ."

In Moscow last night Soviet news media reported at length President Kennedy's General Assembly speech but omitted mention of his suggestion for a joint Russian-American expedition to the moon.

Western observers interpreted the omission as an indication that the Soviet Union would react to Kennedy's suggestion in cautious fashion.

In principle, the Soviet Union has endorsed the idea of joint American-Soviet space co-operation.

Mme. Nhu Prefers Mao

Nikita Chief Peril

ATHENS (AP) — Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu said Friday Soviet Premier Khrushchev "is cleverer and therefore more dangerous" than Red China's boss, Mao Tse-tung.

"I have nothing to say about President Kennedy, but I think Mrs. Kennedy is glamorous and should be admired."

The chic, politically powerful first lady of South Viet Nam summed up her views on these world figures in two interviews, 500 miles apart.

Mme. Nhu discussed the Communist chieftains at the close of a nine-day visit to Belgrade and made her remark about the Kennedys under questioning of Greek reporters on her arrival by Yugoslav airliner in Athens for an overnight visit.

The petite 38-year-old sister-in-law and official hostess of President Ngo Dinh Diem said the Khrushchev type of coexistence is not genuine.

"It is only a form of subversion," she said. "Khrushchev wants world domination just like Mao Tse-tung. But while Mao is loud, beating the drums, Khrushchev pursues his aims quietly. The means of Khrushchev might succeed much easier than those of Mao."

Has U.S. Moon Solo Gone Sour?

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Underlying President Kennedy's dramatic proposal for a joint U.S.-Soviet moon expedition may be a feeling that perhaps the United States going it alone cannot beat the Russians to the lunar surface.

The suggestion, made before the United Nations Friday, comes at a time when the slip is showing noticeably on U.S. plans for manned and unmanned exploration of the moon. Public enthusiasm for the project apparently is waning, costs are spiralling and the U.S. Congress no longer is rubber stamping space agency money requests.

Some officials who are doing the spade work at Cape Canaveral for the lunar landing effort expressed surprise at the president's proposal. They agreed that a combined U.S.-Russian effort would help world tensions, but they were disappointed at the indication Kennedy is ready to abandon the great national goal of being first on the moon.

When Kennedy declared the United States in the race in May, 1961, with a target of landing astronauts on the moon before 1970, there was general national enthusiasm. A few sceptics said the president's decision was rash, made hastily in the wake of Russia's achievement of orbiting the first man. They noted Russia had a tremendous lead with superior rocket power.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration rallied to Kennedy's cause. They said a manned landing on the moon is possible

Four Socreds Quit In Burnaby Hassle

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hassle within Social Credit ranks in Burnaby riding has resulted in the resignation of four party members, including James Mason, vice-president of the Social Credit League of B.C. and president of the Burnaby Social Credit Association.

Mr. Mason said he resigned over methods used to conduct a second nomination meeting in Burnaby last week, which he said played into the hands of unscrupulous manipulators.

In the first meeting Sept. 3 Mr. Mason and Mrs. Dorothy Munnik were nominated, triggering protests that Mr. Mason employed a ruling which eliminated 100 votes.

The provincial body ordered a second meeting to settle the issue. Charles MacSorley and H. H. W. Byerstein were nominated.

Mr. Mason said Dr. Ernest Meinderama and Charles Torrey, vice-president in Burnaby constituency, have also resigned, along with membership secretary Mrs. Anne Torrey.

Strachan Guessing

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) —New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan was just guessing when he forecast a general power-rate reduction, Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, said Friday.

"I think he was just guessing," said Dr. Shrum. "I don't want to get involved in the politics of it."

Mr. Strachan had forecast a rate reduction within a week "in a desperate attempt to woo voters."

File-Burning Foreseen By Fulton

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Davie Fulton, provincial Conservative leader, said Thursday night secret reports on the Peace River dam project which he said were being kept hidden by the Social Credit government will be made public if his party wins the election.

"We will make these reports public—unless they are burned," he told a public meeting here. "There will be a great file-burning when there is a change of government."

He said the reports show that the Peace project "is an economic monstrosity and should be stopped now."

or more guests included Gromyko, U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko, Canadian Ambassador Paul Tremblay and Milton F. Gregg, Canadian chairman of the assembly's budgetary committee.

Pearson and Kennedy, who sat on either side of Thant, had chats on UN and Canadian-U.S. affairs before and during the luncheon.

CHALLENGING

Pearson declined to disclose the specific subjects discussed. He said in an interview he found Kennedy's speech "very constructive" and the space proposals "quite challenging."

Kennedy outlined an "agenda" of steps that could be taken to promote U.S.-Soviet co-operation, including measures to prevent war by accident, safeguards against surprise attack, measures to curb the nuclear arms race and agreement on freer flow of people and information between East and West.

PICKETS PARADE

Kennedy also dealt bluntly with racial and religious persecution, both in the U.S. and abroad. As he spoke, integration pickets paraded outside the building, carrying such signs as "Arm Negroes for self-defence."

Kennedy told the assembly UN members were committed by the charter to promote and respect human rights. He added:

"Those rights are not respected when a Buddhist priest is driven from his pagoda, when a synagogue is shut down, when a Protestant church cannot open a mission, when a Cardinal is forced into hiding, or when a crowded church service is bombed.

U.S. OPPOSED

"The United States of America is opposed to discrimination and persecution on grounds of race and religion anywhere in the world, including our own nation. We are working to right the wrongs of our country."

U.K. Firms Taken Over

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—Indonesia announced the state takeover of all British companies in this country as an uneasy calm settled over this riot-torn capital Friday.

An official government statement said the order was not aimed at nationalizing the companies—it was for their safety and to ensure production continued.

President Sukarno also ordered a stop be put to the takeover of British companies by left-wing labor unions in the wake of violent anti-British rioting against the newly-formed Malaysian Federation.

U.S. Moon Plan Waning?

with present technology and talked hopefully of putting astronauts there as early as 1967. Congress provided without question the millions of dollars needed to get the program started.

It was estimated the total effort would cost less than $20,000,000,000. Now, two years later, estimates run as high as $40,000,000,000. In 1961, the agency concentrated on early manned flights in Project Mercury and on developing unmanned space craft to investigate the lunar surface for proper landing areas and possible dangers.

SPACE RENDEZVOUS

Mercury, which sent six men into space, was climaxed successfully last May with astronaut Gordon Cooper's 22-orbit mission. But the follow-on Project Gemini, designed to perfect space rendezvous techniques vital to the Apollo man-on-the-moon program, has slipped more than a year because of technical troubles. The first two-man Gemini flight now is due in late 1964 and the first rendezvous flight a year later.

The Apollo program also has encountered technical snags—both in the huge 7,500,000-pound thrust Saturn IV booster rocket and in the three-man spacecraft. NASA officials declare that despite the troubles, Apollo will achieve its goal in this decade. But they no longer talk in terms of 1967 or 1968.

The unmanned lunar exploration program has been a flop so far. Three Project Ranger craft, designed to land on the moon and relay data last year, all failed. Project management has been shaken up and for several months the program has been under careful study. The next launching is due in December.

FUEL PROBLEM

Surveyor, a more sophisticated vehicle than Ranger, was to have made initial moon landings this year, but difficulty in developing the Centaur space rocket, which burns revolutionary liquid hydrogen fuel, has held up flights for at least a year.

Another liquid hydrogen engine, to be used as a second stage of the early Saturn rocket, has delayed test flights several months.

Russia has made lunar flights since 1959, when a camera-carrying satellite took the first pictures of the back side. But Soviet publications indicate an all-out push may be made soon in this field, preparatory to manned explorations.

Because of secrecy surrounding Soviet efforts, American experts aren't certain how the Russians stand in the moon race. For years Russia has had rockets four times more powerful than the United States' largest operational boosters.

THREE YEARS AHEAD

With twin astronaut flights last year and this year they demonstrated near rendezvous capability three years before the first possible U.S. attempt.

There is some thought the Russians could try a lunar landing as early as 1965.

American enthusiasm reached great heights on each of the U.S. man-in-space shots. But in between interest in the space program has waned—and with another astronaut flight more than a year away, it will drop even lower.

COST QUESTIONED

Many men on the street have questioned the tremendous cost.

The attitude is reflected in Congress, where this year for the first time the space agency budget request was chopped considerably, including a big slice taken from the Apollo program.

Issue: Integrity

that if his government was re-elected, it would embark on a new North Shore bridge in co-operation with the municipalities.

TAX CUT DUE?

Absence of capital project announcements has prompted some observers to believe he may be protecting future revenues so he can finance the Peace power project. Other speculation is a tax cut may be announced before Sept. 30.

The opposition parties were "do-nothing" groups which broke their promises, said the premier, but his party made no such promises.

"But we in Social Credit do things which we never promised."

SEVERAL POINTS

Cries of "tell us about free enterprise" and "I'm for Fulton" rang down from the balcony at several points.

Bennett said the Tory leader had accused him of being unable to finance the Columbia project if B.C. took back its downstream power entitlement.

"I wouldn't be stupid enough to try," he shouted.

"How about the Peace?" asked a heckler. "That's stupid."

SOUND BASIS

Unperturbed, the premier said, "We'll develop the Columbia on a sound basis and make the Americans pay for it."

Then he switched to Prime Minister Pearson whom he praised for advancing the Columbia project by talks in Washington and the agreement with B.C.

"Mike is a fine fellow but I feel sorry for the mess he's got."

HIRE A HALL

When another heckler tried to sing "Alouette," the premier broke in with "Go and hire a hall, my friend."

He said the single issue of the campaign was "whether you want a government without patronage."

"Haw, haw, haw," was the response from the balcony.

Members of the audience were clearly for him or against him and the latter numbered less than two dozen.

LOUD CHEERS

Cheers drowned out his words at several points as he reviewed Socred policies and future plans.

He seemed to enjoy the heckling, crying: "Every audience must have its jesters—keep it up my friends," he cried.

He said the result of socialism is higher taxes, in Saskatchewan, "they take one third more out of the pay envelopes of the workers and if you want that vote NDP."

THEN SOME

When another heckler shouted "I'm for Fulton," the premier said: "I'm going to tell you he'll need you and then some, my friend."

He said Highways Minister Gaglardi would defeat the Tory leader 2-1.

"Wherever you have Social Credit you have more jobs, my friends," he went on.

"And two leaders," cracked a voice.

Strachan is so busy changing his image the voters "don't know what side of the tracks he's on."

"Fulton goes up to the north where he wouldn't get a vote anyway and says he'll stop the Peace—he won't even stop a piece of cake."

Body Found

The body of a woman was found Friday floating off the northern shore of Valdez Island near Nanaimo, RCMP said.

RCMP sent a boat from Ganges to retrieve the body and take it to Nanaimo. Age of the woman could not be determined.

Go Hunt Those Pesky Chiggers If Sulphur Treatment Fails

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old son has been getting chiggers.

The doctor told me to dust his clothes with sulphur, but it doesn't seem to help. I haven't dusted his bed clothes. Would the sulphur hurt his eyes or do any damage if it got in his mouth.

Is it possible for the chiggers to get in his system and do real damage? —MRs. R.M.

The sulphur dust might or might not irritate his eyes, but would not be harmful if he got some in his mouth. However, there are some tricks for combatting chiggers.

These pesky mites attach themselves to the skin, then drop off in about four days after having caused violent itching. The itch is from a fluid which the chigger injects into the skin.

Scratching the areas may, obviously, lead to infection, but the chiggers do not invade beyond the skin, so you need have no fear of sytematic harm.

If the trouble is not readily cleared up, find out where the boy is getting the chiggers. Persumably he doesn't roam too far. Take pieces of black cardboard and set them up edgewise on the ground in various likely places. The chiggers, if in the area, will climb to the top edge of the cardboard.

Once you have found the place, or places, spray the area. The U.S. department of agriculture recommends chlordane, toxaphane or lindane.

Dear Dr. Molner: On my doctor's advice, I have been taking a rather large vitamin pill at dinner time. By next morning this pill passes through my system completely undissolved. I am evidently getting no benefit from them, and they are quite expensive. Maybe the pill has too hard a coating, or perhaps something is wrong with my digestive system. Can you advise me? —E. M.

I wouldn't be too concerned about the digetive system. Either the coating is too hard or the motility of your digestive tract is such as to cause the pill to go through too rapidly. Switch to another preparation, one in a gelatin capsule, for example, or a liquid.

Dear Dr. Molner: During the menstrual period is it common to pass large clots? I am in my 20s and am worried sick, as I have always been extremely healthy. However, our family has been under quite a nervous strain lately.—L. M.

Clots are not unusual, particularly in the first day or so, but you might benefit doubly, if you are so worried, by seeing a gynecologist. It would put your mind at ease.

AN OPEN LETTER to the registered voters of British Columbia . . .

It seems a certainty that the near future will see some form of government participation in a health care program.

Whatever your political affiliation, it is imperative you cast your vote for the man and or party which will endeavor to provide the best protection for you and your family.

The chiropractic profession submits that doctors of chiropractic render a specialized service in the field of health, a service not provided by the medical profession and one which is receiving greater public demand each year. Unless chiropractic is provided, a large number of cases will not receive adequate care.

It should be noted that, despite the prevalence of restrictive MD-sponsored group plans such as MSA and MSI which exclude the services of chiropractors, approximately 150,000 citizens of our province will this year spend nearly $2,500,000 upon chiropractic care.

Consequently, a large segment of our population would unjustly suffer discrimination should any form of a government-sponsored health program not include chiropractic since it is the therapy of their choice and need.

Twice in recent years independent surveys were conducted in British Columbia to establish the public attitude toward chiropractic. Each showed overwhelming support of chiropractic inclusion in any government health insurance program.

We respectfully suggest that before voting for the candidate in your riding, regardless of party affiliation, make certain of his stand on vital issues, including a health program embracing chiropractic.

Queen Brings Anne To Boarding School

BENENDEN, England (Reuters) — Princess Anne, 13, Friday night started her first term at a girl's boarding school. The Queen brought the princess from Balmoral Castle in Scotland, where the Royal Family is on vacation.

It's Not Impossible

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's railways are bracing themselves for a major—but, they hope, not impossible—job in moving to the ports the 228,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour purchased by Russia.

Planning the giant shipping operation has not yet advanced to the stage where the railways can start allocating boxcars and locomotives, but its magnitude makes it clear the CNR and the CPR will have to throw all their resources into the job.

Says CPR vice-president R. A. Emerson: "It obviously is a big job, but in terms of what has been done in the past I certainly wouldn't say it is insuperable."

The publicly-owned CNR says it is figuring on having to go all out. "But we feel we can handle it, although there may be a strain sometimes," said a spokesman.

There has been no official estimate yet as to how much of the total shipment will go through the Lakehead, the Maritime ports or possibly the west coast.

The railways are expecting, however, that most of the shipments will go through the Lakehead—either picked up by ocean vessels using the St. Lawrence Seaway, or carried down the system by lake vessels and trans-shipped at Montreal.

Soviets Accuse China Of Treaty Treachery

MOSCOW (AP)—The Kremlin accused Red China's leaders Saturday of treachery, hypocrisy and "complete apostasy" from the Communist line in opposing the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

At the heart of China's opposition, the statement said, is Peking's own desire to become a nuclear power, and the Chinese leaders "have suffered a serious moral and political defeat" because of the world-wide approval the treaty received.

Bonn Shifts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Foreign Minister Schroeder outlined to Secretary of State Rusk Friday what appeared to be a fundamental change in Bonn policy toward negotiations with Russia.

Officials said Schroeder indicated West Germany now favors a much more active approach to East-West negotiations. Essentially the change is from extreme fear of East-West negotiations concerning Berlin and Germany, a fear of standfast concept, to a belief standing still may be even worse.

Another Deal For B.C.?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The share of wheat shipments to Russia being handled by the west coast is a drop in the bucket that will not strain facilities, says manager W. A. Sankey of the Vancouver Merchants Exchange.

About 19,000,000 bushels moving through B.C. could be shipped from Victoria and New Westminster without even using Vancouver elevators.

Mr. Sankey said the low share for B.C. may mean the Canadian Wheat Board has heavy sales to other customers planned through coast ports.

Russia Seeks Bonn Flour

BONN (AP) — Russia, plagued by a bread shortage, is negotiating with West Germany for the purchase of 250,000 tons of flour, well-informed sources said Friday.

West Germany does not grow enough wheat for its own needs, but its efficient flour mills can make attractive offers on flour milled from foreign grain.

A "HATE CAMPAIGN"

KAMLOOPS: Social Credit candidates charge us with waging a "hate Bennett" campaign.

That is not true.

I am not a friend of Mr. Bennett's. We disagree fundamentally about the standards of integrity and conduct of people in public life. But I do not "hate" the man.

My reasons for being in this campaign are quite different and quite clear. They do not concern Mr. Bennett as a man. They concern, instead, the things he has done to our province.

He has seriously damaged our credit rating. Sources from which responsible provinces borrow are closed to us. The borrowing problems of our municipalities and of B.C. private industry are greater than they should be.

Our industrial growth is choked, at great cost in dollars and jobs.

Mr. Bennett's government has ignored vital areas of our society. Our standards of education are too low, and our school costs too high. Agriculture has not received necessary attention. Property is taxed to the breaking point. There is no formal provision for the care of persons ill without money. The list goes on.

And now Mr. Bennett wants to throw nearly a billion of our dollars into a Peace River pipedream which his own experts condemn as uneconomic and wrong.

The question is not whether Mr. Bennett is loved or hated. The question is whether British Columbia can afford to keep this man in office.

I believe we cannot. Industry, jobs, good schools, fair taxation, are too important to be sacrificed.

Job Providers

SOME RATHER surprising figures have been produced by Mr. Guy Favreau, the minister of citizenship and immigration, concerning the amount of capital brought into Canada by immigrants since the Second World War. Surprising at least in relation to the image of penniless new arrivals that persists in many minds from an earlier day.

The 2,193,000 immigrants who have come to this country since 1946 according to Mr. Favreau have brought no less than $1,117,000,000 with them, besides settlers' effects worth almost half a billion; a massive infusion into Canada's economy by any count.

These figures were taken by the immigration minister in an address to real estate agents of Quebec as confirming the assertions of the economist Nathan Keyfitz that "immigrants contribute much more to the economic progress of Canada by the capital that they bring in than in their role as consumers"—that the businesses they launch, the skills they contribute and the jobs they create are more beneficial to the country than the purchasing power they add to the domestic market.

This purchasing power is by no means to be ignored: the newcomers who arrived between 1951 and 1958, according to Mr. Favreau's instances, bought 173,000 stoves, 105,000 refrigerators, 128,000 washing machines and 81,000 cars in that period; the percentage of immigrants who own their homes after 12 years in Canada is considerably higher than the average for Canadians as a whole.

But of special interest is their investment in their new land. In a 12-year period, 9,850 new Canadians established businesses of their own for which they paid $116,560,000 and which have created employment for nearly 45,000 persons.

There are those born Canadians who naturally enough tend to look upon every new arrival as a competitor on the job market. In the light of these figures, the newcomers on the contrary can well be regarded as, directly or indirectly, providers of jobs, enriching Canada by their presence.

The Lost Votes

THE REASONS for Premier Bennett's surprising decision on a snap election remain a matter of speculation. Probably Mr. Bennett alone knows them in full detail. Clearly though he must have seen political advantage in catching everyone off base, and he must take full responsibility for the disfranchising of thousands of voters through the haste he imposed.

There is surely no sound basis for suggesting or insinuating, as some politicians have done, that these thousands were deprived of their right to vote deliberately, as a partisan manoeuvre. Social Credit would have no more to gain, or no less to lose, than any of the other parties under these circumstances.

But the result that the voters' list contains fewer names this year than for the last election although there has been a substantial increase in population is hardly more excusable for that. And although nothing can be done about it at present, the situation should not be allowed to recur.

Mr. Strachan says disfranchisement shows the need for an enumeration before every election. The Victoria Labor Council says the province ought to establish a permanent voters' list to be kept continually up to date, and this would seem the better suggestion. It would allow shorter campaigns than Mr. Strachan's proposal. The electors no doubt would welcome this, although the parties unless prepared at all times might not. And it would ensure that no one interested in keeping the right to cast his ballot in a provincial election would lose it because a premier decided the time was opportune to rush to the polls.

Wheat Surplus Needed

THE FAILURE of the Russian wheat crop must have been more complete than was ever anticipated even inside the Iron Curtain, because in addition to making its huge purchase of grain from Canada, the Soviet has been forced to repurchase its sales of new crop wheat made in advance to other European countries, including the Netherlands and Finland.

The Russians are also reported to be negotiating with British wheat firms for the cancellation of the orders already accepted by that country.

While the amounts involved represent only a few million bushels—a drop in the bucket compared to total European requirements—this grain will have to be replaced from somewhere else, and it seems likely that in addition to the Russian order, the Canadian Wheat Board will be called upon to fill out some of the orders on which the U.S.S.R. has been forced to default.

As a result of the European crop failure this year, the world may be spared the horror of a food famine only because Canada, and a few other wheat exporting countries in recent years have been growing considerably more than they had any immediate hopes of selling.

"I'm no critic, mind you, but the new television season looks promising—the World Series, football, basketball. TV gets better every year!"

Never Underestimate the Power of a Woman . . .

Two Strong Currents at Work

By STANLEY KARNOW from Hong Kong

TWO strong and seemingly contradictory currents flow through many of the Asian countries that have achieved independence since the Second World War.

These young states are intensely, and often narrowly, nationalistic. At the same time, however, they still retain a strong sentimental attachment to the European colonial power that dominated them in the past.

Both these currents are working strongly in Viet Nam at present. There is a growing nationalist spirit that advocates unification of the country, which was partitioned in 1954. Paradoxically, in seeking this unity, Vietnamese leaders in Communist Hanoi, as well as in anti-Communist Saigon, seem to be turning for guidance to the French, who controlled Viet Nam for more than 60 years and fought bitterly to prevent its freedom.

It is believed that President Charles de Gaulle was responding to this growing Vietnamese attitude when he declared recently that France would help Viet Nam to unite and end "foreign influence."

In North Viet Nam, Communist officials have discreetly explained to French diplomats based in the area that a unified Viet Nam could reduce its economic and political dependence on Communist China.

They argued that the north and south zones of the country are economically complementary and that the cohesion of the rice-growing south to the industrial north would make Viet Nam a viable entity.

During these private discussions, the Vietnamese Communists are said to have stressed their historical enmity towards China, which occupied their land for 1,000 years. They did not openly suggest a possible rupture with the Peking regime, but mentioned that they might enjoy the kind of quasi-autonomous relationship to China that Poland has with the Soviet Union.

The North Vietnamese are thought to be pursuing this line now because of two immediate needs. The failure of collectivization, combined with bad weather, has resulted in a severe food crisis in their country. They are not receiving help from China, which is short of food, and therefore look towards the Mekong River delta in the south, which traditionally supplied the north with rice.

Simultaneously, North Viet Nam's president Ho Chi Minh is trying to avoid an outright commitment to either Peking or Moscow in the Sino-Soviet dispute. He has edged towards China lately, but he has still refused to become as wholehearted a member of the Peking camp as Albania or North Korea.

The North Vietnamese have not indicated that they are about to abandon Communism for the sake of unity. They have reportedly described their ideal Viet Nam as "socialist" and "neutral."

A similar chord is being sounded in South Viet Nam, where some leaders in President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime see unity as a way of dispensing with U.S. tutelage. The most prominent advocate of a deal with Hanoi is said to be President Diem's powerful brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who directs the government's secret police.

Nhu has been toying with the notion of a neutral, unified Viet Nam for years. Back in 1957, after a trip to India, he conceived the idea of an autonomous Asian bloc, allied to neither the capitalist nor the Communist worlds. Viet Nam, he suggested at the time, could become "something like Sweden."

As he outlined his project to associates, Nhu delineated what he called his "short range" and "long term" policies, over the short range he believed that Hanoi should get all it could from Chinese and Russians, while Saigon milked the U.S. for aid. At some future date, he foresaw, both north and south could shed their foreign patrons and create a neutral state.

In the years since, Nhu has been careful to make the most of the U.S. help without succumbing to U.S. influence, he has repeatedly fought against U.S. advice, and his controlled newspapers often inveigh against the interference of "capitalist imperialists."

Most important, he has continually insisted on maintaining a high level of foreign exchange reserves in the Vietnamese treasury "just in case" Viet Nam broke with the U.S. Current Vietnamese reserves are about $160 million, and it is estimated that the Saigon regime could somehow survive for about a year without U.S. aid.

Within recent months, Nhu has become increasingly outspoken against U.S. criticism of the way the Diem government has handled South Viet Nam's Buddhist crisis. On several occasions he bluntly told interviewers that the Americans do not understand the Vietnamese. "We can do without U.S. aid," he said not long ago.

According to reliable sources, Nhu recently sent an emissary to Paris, presumably to ask the French if they would lend Viet Nam assistance in case U.S. aid were discontinued. It is not known whether the emissary was given direct encouragement, but Nhu is said to have been gratified by General de Gaulle's offer of French help to a neutral, unified Viet Nam.

Despite his avowed anti-Communism, Nhu has privately intimated that he is capable, through personal connections, of effecting a conciliation with the Communists in Hanoi. Nhu lived in Hanoi for many years as director of Viet Nam's archives.

Vietnamese in both North and South Viet Nam have a special cultural affinity for the French, and if they are considering a marriage, they seem willing to have France play matchmaker. Ho Chi Minh, Nhu, and other Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi and Saigon spent their youth in Paris. A common subject of conversation with Vietnamese is reminiscence of student days in the Latin quarter.

There are many signs that the Vietnamese still hold a special affection for the French. Not long ago, for example, pro-Communist guerrillas examined their passports and then released them saying: "If you'd been Americans we would have killed you."

At this point it appears that the French are particularly eager to profit from what they consider their particular position in Viet Nam. They have coal-mining interests in North Viet Nam, and they own rubber estates in the south. In addition, the French are anxious to recover their prestige in Asia after the humiliating defeat they suffered at Dien Bien Phu in 1954. They have never quite accepted the fact of their replacement in Indo-China by American military and economic power—especially since that power has not been notably successful.

And in an intangible, almost mystical way—characteristic of de Gaulle's spirit—the French also feel a certain sympathy and responsibility for a people they once ruled. "Despite all their mistakes," one observer put it, "the French still think they must carry the 'white man's burden' in Viet Nam."

Chitemene

Quick Change

By RICHARD HALL from Lusaka

IT is no surprise that politicians in Africa behave differently from the way they behaved when they were still struggling for independence from colonial rule. The differences between the actions of politicians in office and out of office are commonplace everywhere. What makes the change in emancipating states of more piquant interest is that what were damned as "repressions" under white administration become not only less sinful when nationalists are in control, but may even become cornerstones of policy.

Consider, for example, the case of Mr. Simon Kapwepwe, Northern Rhodesia's minister of agriculture. Nobody could accuse the fervent, toga-wearing Mr. Kapwepwe of being a "neo-colonialist stooge." But he has declared war on chitemene.

Chitemene is the Northern Rhodesian name for "slash and burn" farming. It is a primitive method by which trees are cut down and burned to give the soil a brief fertility. When the soil is exhausted the people move on to cut down more trees.

At least one million of the country's 3,500,000 people farm the chitemene way. In vain the British Colonial Office tried to stop chitemene. They pointed out how it caused erosion by removing the soil's protective cover and how it ruined the woodlands. Nobody would listen. There was nothing to be done. Any attempt to end chitemene by legislation would have provoked uproar. Agriculturalists who tried too forcefully to talk the people into new and settled ways of farming ran into difficulties with local African politicians.

Northern Rhodesia is a wealthy country because of its tremendous Copperbelt, but the rural areas have always been neglected. Subsistence production of maize, cassava and millet has been given way only recently to the growing of cash crops, such as tobacco and cotton.

Mr. Kapwepwe's plan is to gather the country people together at centres with good soil. There they will be subjected to a barrage of advice and exhortation on modern farming. But if he is to make the plan work he must kill chitemene.

In his policy statement he has not broken the news gently. "There is now," he declared, "an urgent need for people to change their attitudes from the out-of-date chitemene methods to modern agriculture. Chitemene served our forefathers, but times have changed. You must decide now, and not later."

The arch exponents in Northern Rhodesia of chitemene are the dominant Bemba tribe, who with their subsidiary groups number more than 500,000. Mr. Kapwepwe is a Bemba himself.

Belated Recognition

Science Catches Up

By SHAUN HERRON

SCIENTISTS, unlike theologians, are so very far behind the times.

From Science Service in Washington, D.C., there comes a belated recognition phrased in the terms of a new truth:

"Human beings are more closely related to rats than was thought, according to new discoveries by scientists studying evolution."

It seems that Dr. Malcolm C. McKenna has found "that anagalidas, small extinct animals with hoofs on their hind legs and claws on their fore-paws were ancestors of both mice and men." It is not surprising therefore that Dr. McKenna also "found that the earliest known primates had teeth like humans and many traits belonging to the primitive insectivores, mammals such as moles, shrews and hedgehogs."

I feel sorry for the gibbon who for so long has occupied a place of affectionate relationship in our minds. When one saw a gibbon in a zoo or on an animal farm it was nice to nod to him and wonder whether he was as aware of The Cousinhood as they are on the Conservative benches at Westminster.

One felt a kindred movement in the spirit: perhaps not quite a second cousin but at least a relation and when one referred to some church politician as a baboon, it might not have been kindly but at least it was in the family.

Perhaps the vocabularly of domesticity should have had much more careful study after the manner of the Biblical scholars' higher criticism. When you refer to the policeman who gives you a ticket as "that big ape" you are really speaking out of a conditioned mind. Since childhood the popular notion has been "my grandfather an ape" and Southern governors and South African statesmen have described their non-voting but taxpaying constituents as "just out of the trees," so there is a well established frame of reference which relates us to those sweet swingin' climbers.

There has been no such educational pressure upon us to use the language of domesticity, therefore it may be that some rooted awareness in the deep areas of our psyche compelled our wives to describe us as "that rat" and provided us with our defensive retort "you shrew." I have, indeed, heard women refer to their modest and subdued husbands as "the mole" and "mousey." This is known as internal evidence.

There has long been other kinds of internal evidence, however, and the popular mind has discerned it and applied it to all militant and effective enemies. To policemen violent criminals are rats and to criminals violent policemen are rats; to gentlewomen of a certain sort, men who do not share their narrowed obsessions are rodents; which is classier but the same.

But love and hate have a basic affinity and on our side in the recent international disturbance we had the affectionately regarded Desert Rats. Deep down, we knew where we belonged. We have all along had a love-hate relationship with the extinct anagalidae.

It is now out in the open, thanks to science. What bothers me is that the theologians have labored in vain to persuade the world of our relationship to moles and shrews and rats and mice and the tide has run steadfastly against us. Indeed the gibbon myth was a major, scientifically sponsored and presumably non-scientific obstacle to the acceptance of our theological truth.

In recent years we have had in the religious world a great resurgence of the kind of theology that is designed to make us all feel we still are rats, and the Billy Graham and allied schools have had their more respectable, more scholarly but essentially kindred counterpart in the New Orthodoxies, the Neo-Orthodoxies, the Biblical Theologies and the other Man is a Rat Schools.

They have been received with scientific scorn. Only the other day a non-neo-clergyman in Los Angeles said of Billy Graham's activities there: "He has set religion back 50 years in Los Angeles." And almost before the words were spoken Dr. McKenna got up at a zoological convention at Washington, D.C., and said: "Man is a rat." Or words to that effect.

It seems to be a great time for unexpected but happy rapprochment. Rome and Worms and Geneva — the Protestant-Catholic axis—are in the same orbit; scientists and theologians are reaching zoological accord. Soon all disagreement will have died and we shall purr like the Song of Solomon (chapter 2): "The voice of the turtle is heard in our land." We shall all be hard-shell Baptists.

I am reminded of the time I preached the anniversary services at Knox-Metropolitan United in Regina. The reading I had chosen was from Isaiah 40 in which there is a verse which says I am a grasshopper. The lieutenant-governor was to read the lesson and he refused—the minister told me—to read that verse on the ground that he was not a grasshopper.

But what I now fear is that with all the accord that is growing up in the world there will soon be no one, not even a lieutenant-governor, with nerve enough to disagree with anybody. If the scientists and the theologians speak with one voice, who will dare to defy such a tyranny?

To the barricades, men. Is there a liberal who still wants to be a gibbon?

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Loss of the Canadian destroyer Ottawa was announced 21 years ago today—In 1942—after a German submarine attack on an Atlantic convoy. The toll was 113 officers and men dead or missing. Also announced lost that week were the corvette Charlottetown with nine dead, and the patrol yacht Raccoon, with 37 killed. The Ottawa was one of the six modern destroyers with which Canada entered the Second World War. She was one of the escort destroyers when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth crossed from Vancouver to Victoria during the 1939 Royal visit.

1957—King Haakon VII, of Norway, died.

1949—The Federal Republic of Germany, West Germany, came into being.

Washington Calling

Warning Still Valid

By MARQUIS CHILDS

"IN the councils of government we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist.

"We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes. We should take nothing for granted. Only an alert and knowledgeable citizenry can compel the proper meshing of the huge industrial and military machinery of defence with our peaceful methods and goals so that security and liberty may prosper together."

The words spoken by General Eisenhower in his farewell address might well have been emblazoned on the wall of the Senate chamber in the test-ban treaty debate. And no more striking instance of what the former president was talking about could be imagined than the effort of the Air Force Association to sway that debate.

The council of the association, which is a tight interlocking directorate of the highest officers in the air force and the aircraft industry, worked up an emotionally worded resolution denouncing the test-ban treaty. It was introduced at the start of the association's meeting here with no doubt whatsoever of its adoption.

Either directly or by implication the resolution made a number of statements highly dubious as to fact. Underlying a plea for the manned bomber was the theme that with more and more weapons Communism could be made to fold up and go away. The strong intimation was that the treaty would stand in the way of victory by air power.

Understandably, the resolution set off an uproar in the Pentagon where Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara has been a prime target of the air force. One result was that Secretary for Air Eugene M. Zuckert abruptly cancelled a previous acceptance to attend an association reception in his honor with a letter denouncing the resolution in strong terms. Since the secretary has customarily been a member in good standing of the directorate, this was an instance of man bites dog.

The Pentagon uproar, which is bound to have further repercussions, encroached on that delicate area of civilian versus military control over policy. A speech to be made by Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of the Strategic Air Command and one of only two generals openly testifying against the treaty, to an association luncheon was heavily blue pencilled. But some who heard General Power believed he restored most of the censored passages.

In the hassle over what to do about the association resolution, with the White House actively intervening, one of the air force defenders wanted to know what difference there was between the association and a lobby organization such as the Navy League. From an old hand came the reply:

"Yes, there is a difference. The fly boys are comparatively new at this. What they put out is like new whisky. What you get from the Navy League is fine old brandy. The admirals have learned to leave it to the industry and industry experts."

Denouncing the association as a "permanent lobby," on one occasion Sen. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) charged that the air force was spending $626,000 to fly delegates to a convention. Between the air force and the defence contractors money is plentiful. Top air force generals move on retirement into high-salaried positions in the aircraft industry. Anyone seeking a case study of what General Eisenhower was talking about would have to go no further.

Whether directly or indirectly the air force lobby has had comparatively little influence on the fate of the treaty. Three senators deserve special credit for resisting these pressures. Two are Democrats, Senators Stuart Symington of Missouri, and Henry M. Jackson of Washington. Both, as members of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, listened conscientiously to the extensive military testimony on the test-ban treaty before that committee, much of it of a highly technical nature ignoring the diplomatic and political meaning of the treaty. Both came out for ratification.

To the third, Senate Minority leader Everett McKinley Dirksen, that abused expression "statesmanlike" can be applied. Resounding to the arguments of one segment of the military, he might have opposed the treaty, and if he had done so the outcome would have been dangerously in doubt. It is the second time—the first was the financing of the United Nations—that Dirksen has supported the administration on a difficult issue. The test-ban debate is proving that on momentous occasions principle can prevail.

Troubled Ship Sails at Last

CHICAGO (CP - AP) — The Howard L. Shaw, a Canadian vessel which arrived empty in Chicago 151 days ago, left Friday after union workmen defied a court order and again refused to pour grain into the freighter's hold.

The 450-foot ship steamed out of the Calumet River, under police guard and without benefit of tugs, and headed for Fort William, Ont.

The vessel's owner, Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto, said the Shaw had been kept idle in Chicago "at an out-of-pocket cost in excess of $300,000."

EVEN FATAL

"The continued cost of keeping the Shaw idle and, more importantly, the risk of serious and even fatal injury to members of the crew and damage to the vessel . . . make it imperative that the Shaw be returned to Canada," the company said.

The Shaw was left idle by a dispute between two unions. Upper Lakes Shipping once drew crews from the Seafarers International Union, but switched last year to the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC).

New Home For Society

The Victoria Italian Assistance Society has a new home.

Ald. Cecil Parrott officially opened the organizaton's newly-renovated quarters last night before about 60 members of the Italian community in Victoria.

The society, established here in 1954, assists Italian immigrants on their arrival in Victoria and provides a meeting place for Italian-Canadians residing in the area.

The centre, at 804 Kings Road, was remodelled from a former army hut entirely through volunteer labor.

Brain Damage Before Birth

Babies Hit by Virus

WARRENTON, Va. (AP)—A strange, symptom-less virus—so common most people have had it by age 30—may produce more brain damage and mental retardation in new-born babies than measles.

It has, at least, done so according to the findings of researchers at Johns Hopkins University where mothers and their babies have been tested for the virus, said Dr. Robert Cooke, Johns Hopkins pediatrician, at a two-day White House conference on mental retardation.

There is evidence the virus—once it has infected an unprotected mother—can invade the unborn baby causing brain damage as late as the fifth month of pregnancy, or later, and even for a few months after birth.

Blimp's Creator David Low Dies

LONDON (CP) — Sir David Low, whose penetrating editorial cartoons never spared a public figure, is dead at 72.

The creator of "Colonel Blimp" died in hospital Thursday night of a heart condition brought on by a long illness with asthma and kidney trouble. He had been unable to work for the last four months.

His work was known the world over, and Queen Elizabeth knighted him in 1962.

FARM BOY

Friday night Fleet Street heaped columns of praise on Low, the one-time New Zealand farm boy who attained world fame working 33 years for another rugged individualist who deplored many of Low's ideas but gave him full freedom of action—Lord Beaverbrook.

COLONEL BLIMP

His war-time "Colonel Blimp" — a fat, moustached type mouthing pompous nonsense dating back to the Victorian era—put a new phrase in the English language.

Low found his inspiration for this character in a Turkish bath in 1934. He said he heard "two pink chappies of military bearing" declaring what the Japanese did in the Pacific was "no bally concern of Britain."

"What perfect blimps," thought Low, and an international figure was born.

Pediatricians to Study Problems of New Baby

A child's biological problems in his first few days of life will be among subjects discussed by Pacific Northwest children's doctors at a convention next week at the Empress.

Some 350 pediatricians from Alberta, B.C., Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho will attend the 37th twice-yearly conference of the North Pacific Pediatric Society Monday through Wednesday at the Empress. Every four years the group meets in Victoria.

Main speaker will be Dr. Robert Aldrich, director of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, with headquarters in Maryland. Dr. Aldrich, from Seattle, is a member of the society.

Guest speakers will include Dr. Saul Blatman, director of pediatrics at the Beth Israel Hospital, New York; Dr. Robert Jeffs, head of the urology department, Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto; and Dr. George M. Ling, Dr. Peter Moyes and Dr. Betty Wood, all of the University of B.C.

BIRTH PROBLEMS

Dr. Aldrich will discuss a child's problems around the time of birth, Dr. Blatman will discuss recent developments regarding tuberculosis and allied diseases, and Dr. Jeffs will discuss kidney problems.

Bartenders Get Cancer

EDMONTON (CP)—A New York surgeon says that cancer of the tongue is an "occupational hazard" of bartenders.

Dr. John S. Lewis told the Alberta division of the Canadian Medical Association bartenders are constantly "lighting up and taking nips," and a combination of alcohol and tobacco is a factor in tongue cancer.

He said pipe smokers get lip cancer, cigar smokers tongue cancer and cigarette smokers cancer of the voice box and lung.

Ben Bella Sworn

ALGIERS (UPI)—Ex-rebel leader Ahmed Ben Bella became Algeria's first president Friday by swearing before Allah to guard his country's hard-won independence. An ascetic Moslem, the 46-year-old chief executive took his oath on the Koran.

430 Saanich Homes To Get Lighting

Saanich council plans to install $16,245 worth of street lights on a number of streets between Richmond Road and Foul Bay Road, in a residential area where there are about 430 homes.

The project will be another step in the corporation's overall plan of bringing lights as quickly as possible to the sprawling municipality.

COVER LARGE AREAS

Under the present policy, council initiates street lighting as local improvement to cover large areas at a time instead of waiting until residents of a road here and a road there petition council for lighting.

Opposition of more than 50 per cent of the property owners is required to defeat the council-initiated street lighting bylaws, though this seldom happens.

STREETS LISTED

Council plans to put lights on Watson, Cochrane, Forrester, Taylor, Neil, Allenby, Townley, Carnarvon, Newton, Kings Road, Haultain, Carrick from Dean Avenue to Foul Bay Road, Adanac near Richmond, and on parts of Trent near Haultain and on Dean Avenue.

The corporation of Saanich will pay $2,105 of the $16,245 total, and property owners will pay an estimated 7.9 cents per foot frontage in a special assessment in 20 annual installments.

City Man Bridge Master

Leslie Stewart, 1571 Hampshire, has become Victoria's sixth bridge master of the American Contract Bridge League.

Mr. Stewart qualified for the title by picking up sufficient points in the Pacific Northwest Regional Tournament, now under way at the Empress Hotel.

A total of 300 points is required for the title, and 50 of them must be made in major tournament play.

Teamed with Mrs. Elizabeth Warren of Victoria in mixed-pairs play, and Joe Jacobs of Vancouver in the master pairs, Mr. Stewart reached the 300-point pinnacle Thursday.

Record Near At Toronto

A new high for the industrial average on the Toronto Stock Exchange came within sight at the close Friday when the index stood at 648.66, only 1.48 below the all time high set on June 5 just before the Gordon budget was introduced.

Papers, including B.C. Forest Products, Great Lakes and Abitibi, made new highs. Banks and steels were stronger, but pipelines, favorites earlier in the week were subject to some profit-taking.

At Vancouver industrials were mainly stronger with B.C. Forest Products rising to 22, Woodwards to 20 and Okanagan Helicopters to 1.90.

Western Mines rose to 3.60 and Peso Silver to 1.08, but Mt. Washington and Silver Standard were easier.

At Montreal the trend was higher practically all the way. Banks made good gains, and among the stores Simpsons and Hudson's Bay were big gainers. The Home Oil issues were features in the oils.

New York also managed to reach a new high for the Dow Jones industrial average but only by a meagre .38. Features at New York were Chrysler, General Motors and Jersey Standard all making gains.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP)—The bond market opened strongly but dropped back toward mid-morning. Trading was fairly active.

Stock Market Spillover

Boom Benefits Bonds

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The boom in stock prices which has taken New York into new high ground and has put Canadian index stocks near their peak, this week spilled over into the bond market.

The week started dramatically when the province of Quebec, in its biggest single financing, put out two long-term bonds with yields of 6 per cent and better.

This, it seemed was abnormally high cost financing and investors who had been sitting on the sidelines since last July when President Kennedy brought up his proposed 15 per cent interest equalization tax, besieged the market with orders.

The $75,000,000 issue was sold out within hours, and dealers who had been paring away at their inventories in recent weeks found themselves in poor shape to supply a new public demand for bonded securities.

The result was the first bond buying spree in nearly three months, and prices rose two points and more within as many days.

While it was the Quebec "bargain" that set the market rolling, further impetus was received when the government announced it would hold the yield line on the new issues of Canada Savings Bonds.

It now appears that investors have lost most of their fear of the threat of the proposed U.S. tax to the Canadian bond market, and that even if the tax becomes law — doubtful — then Canada can still get along without Wall Street's aid.

The upturn in Canadian exports, coupled with the big sale of grain to Russia has greatly improved the Canadian balance of international payment situation, and new issues announced this week are reported to have sold extremely well.

The new Government of Canada short-term issues are reported selling above the issue price, while the two long-term six per cent bonds issued by the Province of Quebec are now collectors' pieces, with the 1988 maturity (sold at 99½) now 101½ and the 1978 maturity (sold at 100) now 102 bid.

INDUSTRY WOULD SUFFER

Neil McKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, at a meeting of the board of directors in Vancouver Thursday, said the introduction of a federal pension plan would sharply diminish the flow of savings into the capital requirement of the country's private industry.

The bank president said privately-established pension funds are an important source of funds for investment in the Canadian economy and under a federal pension plan the flow of savings into private pension funds would be greatly diminished.

Mr. McKinnon felt this would be unfortunate because if Canada was to maintain its "notably strong" economic tone, it must reduce its need for foreign capital.

Savings paid into federal pension plans would "merely swell programs of government expenditure" and would not go as at present into productive investment.

SALE ENDS OCTOBER 2nd

Big Home for a Big Family

ONE OF FIRST to move in was United Brotherhood of Carpenters. Clerk Dan Millar checks list of equipment amid bright surroundings.

The exterior is austere, the inside functional, and the color scheme is in neutral flesh tones that give spaciousness to rooms large and small.

While typists positioned their desks to take advantage of windows, and labor union officials toyed with drawstring curtains, workmen moved steadily through this week to the completion of their own new two-storey headquarters.

The $175,000 Union Centre is at 2750 Quadra Street.

The centre will more than double the accommodation of the old VLC building on Pandora, with 13,000 square feet against 6,000.

Like Trades School

As the weekend approached, the centre had the air of a trades school, with carpenters planing doors to fit, shavings heaped in odd spots and tools and lathes in the corridors.

Staff moved in at the beginning of the week, but the noise and activity wasn't bothering them as much as how to take best advantage of the several views from both floors.

They are especially happy about a ground-level courtyard square surrounded by the high walls of the building and the split-level parking area.

It is to be planted with trees and shrubs, and already has the aspect of an Arabian garden.

Home for 65 Unions

Sixty-five unions will be represented in the centre.

Clerk of the works Ernie Oliver said the building was "specifically designed to suit our needs."

Architect was W. S. Wilkinson.

An auditorium is the pride of the centre.

Mr. Oliver said it is the most modern and well-equipped in Victoria.

He said there are six floor microphones and two table mikes. The system has a console control from which mikes can be cut in or out. There are also six low-level overhead speakers.

Air-Conditioned Hall

The 50 ft. by 70 ft. hall is also fully air-conditioned, and has one of the best dance floors in Victoria.

Workmen spent Tuesday applying the melted paraffin base to the maple floor.

"We have banquet facilities for 290 to 300 people," said catering manager Lloyd Ritter. The auditorium can be divided in an instant by a $3,000 steel-and plastic curtain which dulls sound so well that two banquets can be held simultaneously.

Mr. Ritter and his stainless steel kitchen will face its first big test on Oct. 5 with a banquet for 250 people.

A large collapsible platform suitable for dramatic productions will be used in the auditorium whenever needed.

80 'At a Squeeze'

The Labor Council room, also equipped with floor mikes, will accommodate 80 "at a squeeze" said VLC secretary Alf Toone as he tested recording facilities.

"We bought $14,000 worth of new furniture—like that piano over there — but we were able to bring a lot with us."

Eight-foot lighting fixtures with light diffused by fibreglas appear like skylights.

All offices are within easy reach of the two-level parking area, and the auditorium also has easy outlets to the parking lot and Market Street.

$100,000 Borrowed

Gardens will be planted in plots in front of the building.

Financing of the centre has been by pledges from organizations and individuals to buy shares. About $100,000 has already been borrowed.

Public is invited to official opening, Saturday at 2 p.m.

Secretary Alf Toone . . . he'll make it tick.

Caterer Torpedoed by Navy In Tardy Toast to Queen

A Victorian caterer had the RCN to blame when a local regiment and the Princess Mary had to wait for their wine.

Actually that happened just once, and caterer Lloyd Ritter recalls it as one of the more anxious moments of his kitchen-career.

Mr. Ritter came here two-and-a-half years ago from Alberni, to take control of the Golden Slipper on Broad Street.

The fateful night that he was sabotaged by the navy occurred last June.

Called on by the Canadian Scottish Regiment to serve them at a 600-guest banquet for their visiting Colonel-in-Chief Princess Mary, Mr. Ritter found five RCN ships were away in Honolulu.

"Their stewards are the best," he said.

"I had to use 54 'green' girls on the tables."

Protocol is strict at such affairs, and for a toast to the Queen, every item must be stripped from the tables.

"The girls didn't know this, and napkins and forks were left on the tables. I nearly went crazy running around." Finally, the port could be poured.

Princess Mary and her regiment toasted the Queen 22 minutes late.

Mr. Ritter, now in charge of catering at the new Union Centre on Quadra Street, has just two people preparing food in his kitchen. He calls on 15 regular workers, and 100 others in an emergency.

He has an awesome load of equipment to transport to functions.

In includes an 800-pound double-oven range, a 500-pound grill-range, a 700-pound dishwasher, a hotwater booster, and varying amounts of china and glassware.

But that's the least of his troubles.

In taking on the Catholic Society Conference at St. Patrick's School last September, he found he didn't even have a kitchen.

To prepare two meals a day and 11 coffee breaks over two days for 400 people, Mr. Ritter set up his kitchen in a canvas-topped stairwell.

Then the hot water booster expired, steaming.

"We had pans of water all over the stoves, and blow-torches roaring everywhere to keep our water hot," he said.

Fuses Blew

For a B.C. Forest Products banquet of 700 in Esquimalt Sports Centre, he was equipped with lots of electrical gear.

But the centre was not equipped to handle it.

"All the wall-plugs were on one fuse," said Mr. Ritter.

"We blew fuses every few minutes."

Then the gas stoves joined the act, and a friend rushed over to keep them going.

Mr. Ritter was thankful that guests sat down an hour late.

The Centennial Ball went off without a hitch.

At the University Auditorium, 450 guests ate steadily through 225 lbs of turkey, 175 lbs. of ham, 35 lbs of cheese, 120 lbs. of potato salad, 30 lbs. of tomatoes, 30 lbs. of cucumbers, five dozen lettuce heads, 20 gallons of fruit cocktail and 10 quarts of cream.

The most intriguing aspect of a caterer's life is the mysterious disappearance of glasses—"almost always into pockets," Mr. Ritter frowned.

In his two-and-a-half years as banquet boss to Victoria's best, Mr. Ritter has farewelled 3,744 drinking glasses one way or another. Mostly the other, he smiles.

Union Centre Opening Slated Today

The Victoria labor movement's new Union Centre will be officially opened at a ceremony beginning at 2 p.m. today.

Veteran Victoria trade unionist Robert Barrie, president of the Victoria Labor Council, will cut the ribbon.

Expected to speak briefly are Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson; E. T. Staley, president of the Victoria Building Co-operative Union, which owns the building; Canadian Labor Congress vice-president Edward Sims of Vancouver, and B.C. deputy labor minister William Sands.

Other hoped-for guests are Ron [illegible] secretary-manager of the Victoria Building Industries Exchange; Ernest Brown of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce; William Gauld, Victoria representative of the CLC, and V. K. Patterson, president of Patterson Construction Company which built the building.

New Pink Run Established

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

ALBERNI — Federal fisheries officials have succeeded in their project to establish a new run of pink salmon in Alberni Inlet and the Somass River system.

Already 5,000 pinks are in the Somass River system, heading up the Stamp River and homeing-in on Robertson Creek, the world's largest man-made salmon spawning maternity ward.

The spawning bed which has been set aside for the pinks is already black with spawning salmon. Below the fish ladders at Stamp Falls hundreds more are swimming about waiting to home on Robertson Creek, eight miles and four days of swimming upstream.

By the end of the next week the spawning bed is expected to be filled to capacity with nearly 7,000 pink (Humpback) salmon . . . one pair of salmon for every square yard of gravel.

It is the first time in the world that a brand-new run of pink salmon has been established to a river. Until this month there had been no run of pinks to the Somass system and only a few stray pinks had found their way to rivers in Alberni Inlet.

It means a brand-new commercial fishery is in the making for Barkley Sound at the entrance to Alberni Inlet, and a brand-new sports fishery in Alberni Inlet.

The Robertson River project, now proven successful, is another step in fisheries studies that could lead to developments designed to increase Pacific Coast fisheries by as much as five times present production in some areas.

We stood on the banks of the Stamp River yesterday with federal fisheries Pacific chief biologist Bob MacLaren and watched the pinks running up the fish ladders.

"Isn't it amazing! They home right on Robertson Creek," he said.

Later as we watched the Robertson Creek maternity bed, thick with spawning pinks digging in the gravel, his chest stuck out like a proud father.

His enthusiasm was shared by Forbes Boyd, project engineer. Together they have piloted the $256,000 gamble to a winning project.

It hasn't been easy going.

We, along with fisheries officials from many countries, including Japan, attended the official opening in November, 1960, when enthusiasm was high. Some 1,600,000 eyed eggs had been planted in 1959.

There had been 90 per cent survival of the fry which had gone to sea in April and May of 1960 and were due back in the fall of 1961.

But, by Sept. 10, 1961, only five of an anticipated 10,000 had arrived back. No more are in sight. But Mr. MacLaren holds faith.

Last fall only about 250 showed back at Robertson River.

This year's return comes from a plant of 4,500,000 salmon eggs from the Indian River on the mainland, which were eyed at the Puntledge River Hatchery at Courtenay and then placed in the Robertson Creek maternity ward.

This will be the first time pink salmon have actually spawned in Robertson Creek and from the 6,000 pinks (3,000 of them females) it is expected to get 4,500,000 eggs, 90 per cent of which should survive to become fry under the controlled spawning conditions of Robertson Creek.

Up to 18,000,000 more eggs will be taken from the Chakamus River and Indian River on the Mainland and planted as eyed eggs in Robertson Creek, to give a record planting this fall of close to 15,000,000 eggs.

After that it is the intent to let the Robertson Creek pink salmon run look after itself, except for providing ideal spawning conditions.

Shamrocks Bow In Minto Series

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels, with another magnificent team effort, defeated Victoria Shamrocks 11-5 Friday night to win the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior lacrosse championship and the Minto Cup 4-2.

The young Oshawa club, decided underdogs going against the defending - champion Shamrocks, wouldn't be beaten.

It won the first two games of the series 10-7 and 11-4, then lost the next two 10-9 and 9-6.

But, as it has all season, Oshawa snapped back with a 12-6 win Wednesday and finished it off Friday before 1,550 fans, largest crowd of the series.

This was the best game of the series, but Victoria couldn't cope with the fired-up Oshawa team.

John McAuley scored three goals for the winners and John Davis, Tom Conlin and Ken Thompson scored two each. Elmer Tran and Jim Richardson scored the others.

Ranjit Dillon, Victoria's best performer in the series, scored twice for the Shamrocks. Bill Robinson, Bill Munroe and Dick Crompton scored one each for the west.

BEST PLAYER

Oshawa goal tender Merv Marshall was picked as the outstanding player in the series.

Marshall, only 16 years old, was the most consistent performer in a series which featured exceptional goaltending throughout.

The Gaels leaped ahead in the first period 3-1 despite being outshot 13-11.

They outscored the westerners 3-2 in the second period for a 6-3 half-time lead, then they jumped to a 10-4 lead in the third period.

DAVES TOP SCORER

Davis, Oshawa's hardest shooter, was the leading scorer in the series with 15 goals and six assists for 21 points.

Next game McAuley, a pick-up from Brampton, who played only five games but got 11 goals and four assists.

Best for Victoria was Bill Munroe, with seven goals and five assists, but still he didn't have a good series.

Touted as the best junior player in the country, Munroe considered this series as his worst slump.

The real stars for the west were the Dillons, Ranjit and Nirmal. Ranjit scored 10 points on eight goals and two assists and brother Nirmal also 10 points, including six goals.

FIRST TITLE

It was a big win for Jim Bishop, coach and general manager of the Gaels, who started the Green Gael organization 17 years ago. This was the first year the team played out of Oshawa. It was also the first junior title won by the city.

There were only 10 penalties in this game, making it one of the cleanest series ever played in Eastern Canada. And the speed of both clubs also made it one of the best series to watch.

Most of the Shamrocks leave for home Sunday and will arrive at Victoria Tuesday.

Five of the players are flying—Mike Ramberg, Bob Fisher Ranjit Dillon, Rod Kilduff and Ray Beech. Kilduff and Dillon enrol at university Monday morning, and Ramberg, Fisher and Beech have to report for work.

From Victoria:

'We Were Beaten'

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—Victoria Shamrocks, soundly whipped in the Minto Cup series, are taking nothing away from Oshawa Green Gaels.

Coach Tom Druce, whose club lost its Canadian junior lacrosse championship with an 11-5 defeat Friday night, said: "They out-hustled us and outran us all the way. Don't take anything away from them—they had the best club."

Manager Doug Fletcher said the Shamrocks had their problems.

"Bill Munroe had stomach trouble and we had to have a doctor for him today," he said.

"And our goaltender Norm Nestman woke up Friday with the 'flu. Bob Fisher had a sore finger (one he broke recently and reinjured Wednesday) and we couldn't replace him. But these aren't meant as excuses."

"That's right," interjected Druce. "Never mind those injuries — we were beaten. We don't want to sound like crybabies."

Big TV Lure Rocks Milwaukee

Atlanta Next Home of the Braves

CINCINNATI (AP) — Unless Milwaukee civic and government officials guarantee a new radio and television contract that would at least double the current $600,000 annual revenue to the club, the once-fabulous Braves franchise is a virtual certainty to be transferred to Atlanta before the start of the 1964 baseball season.

A source close to the Braves' inner sanctum said this to The Associated Press Friday:

"While no definite commitment has been made to the Atlanta delegation, only a complete change of heart, which is very unlikely at the moment, will keep the Braves from moving to Atlanta for next season."

In addition to the fact that the Braves officials have been sold on the idea that Atlanta is the fastest growing metropolis in the country, the big lure is a radio and television network deal involving 32 states that would provide the club with a revenue of $1,500,000 annually for the first five years.

"I don't see how the Braves can turn down that offer," the source said. "And I don't see how Milwaukee can match that."

The radio - television revenue would be the second largest in baseball, topped only by the New York Yankees' income.

"It is impossible for the city of Milwaukee to better the present TV deal," the source said.

"Because of territorial rights, the Braves cannot operate a network that would extend further south than Chicago or further north than Minneapolis. That means their only avenues are east and west, and the people on the other side of Lake Michigan are not interested in the Braves."

While the identity of the would-be Braves sponsors in Atlanta has not yet been definitely established there have been reports that Coca Cola, American Tobacco and Phillips Oil are interested.

Both John McHale, president of the Braves, and William C. Bartholomew, chairman of the board, steadfastly deny they made any commitments to the Atlanta delegation which first met with Milwaukee club officials in Cleveland during the All-Star game in July and again in Milwaukee several weeks later.

Dodgers Closing In; Magic Number Three

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers moved closer to a National League pennant by defeating Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 Friday night behind the six-hit pitching of Don Drysdale and a fleet supporting cast that stole five bases.

The victory, coupled with Cincinnati Reds' 1-0 triumph over second-place St. Louis Cardinals increased the Dodgers' lead to five games. Any combination of Los Angeles victories or Cardinal defeats totalling three will give the Dodgers their first National League pennant since 1959.

Steals led to both runs for the Dodgers with Tommy Davis, who took over the batting lead at .324 with a 3-for-4 performance, sliding home on the front end of a triple steal for the Dodgers first run in the second inning.

Maury Wills opened the Dodger fifth with a single, took second on a bunt, stole third and then raced home on a wild throw by catcher Smoky Burgess.

Willie McCovey hit his 39th and 40th homers for San Francisco, leading the third-place Giants to a 6-3 triumph over the New York Mets. Orlando Cepeda and Ed Bailey also homered for the Giants.

John Tsitouris pitched the shutout for the Reds against St. Louis, allowing the Cardinals only three singles.

Ken Walters singled in the only run at Cincinnati in the fourth inning, following a two-out double by Don Pavletich and an infield hit by Tommy Harper. The Reds managed only five hits off St. Louis starter Ray Sadecki in his seven innings.

Leafs Head West Minus Three Stars

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) —Defencemen Allan Stanley and Carl Brewer and reserve centre Billy Harris of Toronto Maple Leafs will not accompany the National Hockey League team on an exhibition trip to Western Canada next week.

In deference to Stanley's 38 years, he normally is given extra time to work into shape, coach Punch Imlach said Friday. Brewer broke his arm last spring and is not expected to get into real action until mid-December.

Harris, late in reporting to camp, will join the tour later after conditioning.

Red Kelly, the hockey-playing MP, will make the trip but will leave the club in Vancouver to be back in Ottawa for the Sept. 30 opening of Parliament.

Leafs play Portland in Victoria Sept. 28.

In last night's games, Montreal Canadiens beat Baltimore Clippers, 8-3, in 87-degree heat in Washington; Chicago Black Hawks stopped Buffalo Bisons, 6-5, in Welland, Ont., and Detroit Red Wings beat Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-1, in Peterborough, Ont.

Island's Best Racing Card

"This," said publicist Harry Filion last night, "just has to be the best thoroughbred racing card ever presented on Vancouver Island. We have never had this calibre of stock over here before."

He was talking about today's opening of the ninth annual meeting at Sandown Park, a meeting which will produce 16 days of racing and last until Oct. 19.

FULL RACES

Backing up Filion's claim was the entry for the day. All eight races were full and six of them had also eligibles standing by in case any of the horses who drew in should be scratched.

Feature event of the day is the seventh race, the annual Colonist Handicap over the six-furlongs sprint distance.

Contention in this one, as in every event, is deep. Golden Briar, a four-year-old speedster owned by Dave Diamond, looms as the probable post-time favorite but there'll be a mad dash for the clubhouse turn and it could be that a late-runner could get up in time.

Golden Briar, in post No. 5, has plenty of speed inside him. Milady Pleases has drawn the rail. In No. 3 is Monday's Image, which ran the fastest six furlongs of the season at Vancouver and in No. 4 is Ky. Look, who holds the present six-furlong record at Sandown Park.

The field also includes the amazing Sailprev, who has won seven this year and is out to find out just how good he is. Then there is Joey Mac, a five-year-old gelding who romped by 10 lengths in his last start, and Jewel's Hawk, who not too long ago this season topped a field which included five of today's opponents.

TOUGH FIELD

If that isn't tough enough to figure out, the three-year-old Invitational Handicap which precedes the main event will do. Even if feasible, winner of the $10,000 B.C. Derby this year, drew in he might not go to the post more than a lukewarm second choice.

For those who like them fast, the fifth race could come close to a new six-furlong record although it, too, is for three-year-olds.

Unless there are unexpected scratches in the two races with no also eligibles, eight horses will start in every race. There are four sprints and four races of a mile or more and the overnights list 17 different riders.

First post time today, and for the rest of the month, will be 2:15 p.m. When October comes it will be at 1:45.

United Signs Two Players

Victoria United, getting ready for a Pacific Coast Soccer League match Sunday in Vancouver against North Shore United, has signed two new players.

Manager Wally Milligan has picked up forward Tony Bourbijn, last year with Hourigan's Kickers of the district league, and Ewan Cameron, a junior just arrived from Scotland. Both are forwards.

Oldsters Nab Huge Muskie

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—Two elderly brothers from Belleville reported Friday that they caught a 36½-pound muskie in the Ottawa River.

Fred Aikens, 78, and his brother Frank, 80, said they caught the 52-inch-long fish with a spinning line and a plug.

Argentinian Defeats Light-Heavy Champ

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gregorio Peralta from Argentina slugged his way to a unanimous decision over light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano in a non-title bout Friday night.

Peralta, weighing in at 183½ pounds, used lightning - like jabs and roundhouse swings to punish the champion in every round and win by a wide margin in the first "Friday night fight of the week" in three years for a U.S.-wide television audience.

Pastrano, who won the title from Harold Johnson in Las Vegas in June, was making his second start since then and appeared slower than the old "Willie, the Wisp."

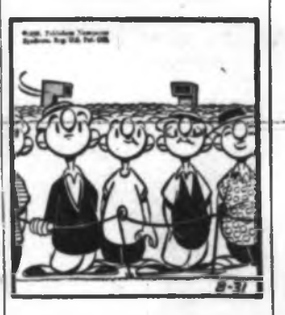

Peralta was making his first start in the U.S. after winning 41 of his 43 starts in Argentina and the heavyweight title of that country.

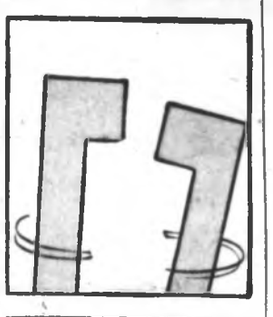

MacDonald Loses

EDMONTON — Danny MacDonald of Victoria PPCLI lost a decision to Ron Gamper of Calgary here last night in their welterweight bout in the Canadian amateur boxing championships.

Golf Ball Problem Plagues Members

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) In thousands of creeks, lakes and ponds from Tokyo to Toronto and New Delhi to New York there are millions of submerged golf balls—planted there by errant drives.

To whom do these golf balls belong?

This was a dilemma that threatened to split the staid Green Hills Country Club here Friday.

A pond on the course recently was drained and 4,000 golf balls, many of them practically new, were salvaged from the muddy bottom.

Some of the balls were inscribed with the names of their original owners.

These members contended that the balls were rightfully theirs.

Mel Deitch, owner of the club, insisted the balls belonged to the club.

The contractor who dredged the balls from the pond said under his contract he was entitled to four or five feet of gravel under the water, plus everything in it—in this case, the golf balls.

The squabble over ownership continued and there was talk of a junta planning to overthrow the club administration.

"We'll probably work out a compromise," said Mel Lumbra, the club's executive director.

Big Bowling Event Set

By JIM TAYLOR

For sheer participation this is going to be bowling's biggest season in Greater Victoria, so it's only fitting that this season also lauches local bowling's biggest-ever tournament.

Starting Sept. 28, all league bowlers in both fivepins and tenpins will be automatically entered in Bowlerama, a season-long competition which will end with the naming of the area's bowler of the year in men's and women's divisions of both games.

It works like this:

EVERY WEEK

Each week the bowler posting the highest three-game total in each of the four divisions (that is, men's singles and women's singles in both fivepins and tenpins) will be presented with a certificate as bowler of the week.

No bowler can win more than once in the 28-week competition. If one bowler has the high series more than once the weekly certificate will revert to the next-highest scorer.

CASH AND TROPHY

This will produce 28 winners in each division. They will roll off in a three-game series to name bowler of the year in each class, and each winner will receive $100 and trophy.

First weekly competition starts Sept. 28. Finals will be held May 2, on lanes to be named at a later date.

Contest, sponsored by the Victoria Times, is unique in that it takes in both fivepin and tenpin bowlers. There are bigger one-day or two-day tournaments in each sport, but up to now there has never been a competition stretching through the season in which all league bowlers automatically compete.

NO ENTRY FEE

There is no entry fee, and no handicap division. The only way to qualify for the finals is to beat everybody in your division in one of the 28 weeks. It's quite an incentive.

Finals of the Aurora Lanes summer Jackpot Bowling competition will be held Sunday at 11. Anyone who has bowled in any of the weekly competitions is eligible for the six-game final.

Word is that there will be several teams heading for Oakland, Calif., Feb. 22 to April 26 to compete in the 61st annual American Bowling Congress tournament.

BIG CHANCE

Since the ABC likes to shift its tournament sites around, this could be the only chance in five years or more for local bowlers to make the biggest tournament of them all.

Norm Goldie won the Capital City Lanes Pot of Gold competition with a 284 (343) series. Other noteable scores there: May Wallis 841 and Reg Waggoner 822 (321).

Only a few scores reported in limited tenpin action over the past week.

At Mayfair Lanes, Bill McKay had a 604 series, Helen MacDonald a 546, Freda Peacock a 218 single and Wilmar Webb a 242.

Leaders at Aurora Lanes were Don Samuelson, a Chemainus bowler who had a 612 (291, 220), Bob Gilman 588 (231), Vince Brown 580 (224), Yulee Leong 576 (215), Doug Elford 575 (220) and Jim Begg 572 (213).

Three Titles Taken Home By Ladies

Three women's club golf championships were decided here yesterday.

Mrs. Joan Lawson successfully defended the Uplands title with a 6 and 5 victory over Mrs. Joan Riley.

Another defending champion, Mrs. Renee Robbins, retained the Victoria club championship by beating Mrs. Margery Godfrey, 4 and 3.

At Royal Colwood, Mrs. Edna Hay, the medalist, beat Mrs. Velda Skillings, 2 and 1.

Handicap Round Set for Uplands

Draw and starting times for women's 15-and-under handicap round Monday at Uplands Golf Club follows:

10 a.m.—Naysmith, Thirlwell, Green.
10.07—Keate, Archambault, Chisholm.
10.14—Skillings, Harrell, Locatelli.
10.21—Saunders, Leach, Christie.
10.28—Bliss, Riley, Stiles.
10.35—Munro, Pumfrey, Price.
10.42—Fall, Whyte, Smith, Liddell.

CHUCK CONERLY
. . . he's upset

Conerly, Gambler Linked NFL Assembling Facts

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Pete Rozelle's office is "assembling all the facts" on several cheques written by Maurice L. Lewis, Memphis developer, and cashed by Charles (Chuck) Conerly, former star quarterback of New York Giants, a member of the National Football League.

Lewis was indicated Jan. 8 by the Shelby County (Tennessee) grand jury on football gambling charges and is awaiting trial.

The Memphis Press-Scimitar, in a copyright story written by James J. White, revealed Friday that five cheques endorsed by Conerly and totalling $9,575, were produced at Lewis' recent bankruptcy hearing.

It said one of the cheques for $3,500 was dated Nov. 6, 1961, while Conerly still was with the Giants.

Conerly retired in February, 1962 after playing his last game for the Giants Dec. 31, 1961 in the title game at Green Bay. He had been with the club 14 years after he left the University of Mississippi.

Lewis testified the cheques represented repayment of loans made to him by Conerly. He said he and Conerly had been friends for "many, many years . . . as far back as 1946."

Jack Mara, president of the Giants, received a phone call from Conerly in Clarksdale, Miss., after the story was published.

Conerly, reported to be much upset, told Mara that Lewis was a friend of his to whom he lent money, that he didn't know he was a gambler.

"Charley told me to tell the football players that he never did anything wrong," said Mara. "He was very much upset after reading the papers."

OCCASIONAL SCOUT

Conerly's only connection with the Giants at present is an occasional scouting job.

Asked for comment about the report, commissioner Rozelle said: "We became aware of it yesterday (Thursday) and Mr. Hamilton (Jim Hamilton, special assistant to Rozelle) is assembling all the facts."

When a spokesman for the league was asked if this meant that an investigation was in progress, he said: "Until all the facts are established, it won't be known if a full scale investigation is warranted."

Fur Will Fly

Lions Face Tigers

B.C. Lions, their three-point lead in the Western Conference clutched protectively to their chest, invade Hamilton tonight, and they'll probably be facing a much-changed bunch of Tiger-Cats.

The defending Eastern Conference champions, who started quickly, have bogged down of late and are currently locked in a three-way tie for the lead with Ottawa and Montreal. It's a situation coach Ralph Sazio can't stand, and he's making lineup changes in wholesale lots to correct it.

Tonight's game between B.C. Lions and Hamilton Tiger-Cats will be seen on Channels 3 and 9 starting at 7 p.m., and tomorrow's Calgary-Toronto game is scheduled over Channel 3 at 11 a.m.

Art Baker, ex-Buffalo fullback, is expected to see action along with halfbacks Jim Face, late of New York Giants, and Tom Gates, cut by Toronto Argonauts.

Lions will be without flanker Sonny Homer, still bothered by an ankle sprain, and possibly quarterback Joe Kapp, reportedly hampered in practice by a dislocated finger.

Edmonton Eskimos play Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina tonight. Calgary Stampeders play the Argonauts tomorrow in Toronto; Lions face the Rough Riders Monday in Ottawa while the Eaks meet the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg, and the Stampeders play Alouettes Tuesday in Montreal.

And while Lions and Calgary fight it out for leadership in the west, Eskimos, Saskatchewan and the Bombers are locked in a struggle of their own.

Riders hold a one-point edge over Bombers in their fight for the third playoff spot in the Western Conference. Eskimos, with only two wins in seven starts, almost have to sweep two games to stay in contention.

Both Edmonton and Saskatchewan have had quarterback troubles all season. Eaks will start Lynn Amedee, while veteran Frank Tripucka may see some action for Riders.

Rudolph Whacks Par For Lead in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Steady Mason Rudolph, who has been out of the money in only one tournament this year, took the lead at the halfway point of the Portland Open golf tournament Friday.

He shot eight strokes off par in Friday's round for a two-day total of 69-64—133, which put him 11 strokes under par and three under his nearest competitor.

He had nines of 33-31—64 on the par 36-36—72 Columbia-Edgewater Country Club course.

Three players were deadlocked at 136. They were George Knudson of Toronto, Tom Jacobs of Bermuda Dunes, Calif., and Dave Hill of Evergreen, Colo.

Rising were three more at 137, five at 138 and four at 139, including defending champion Jack Nicklaus, who got his big game going for a 67.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, with 146, failed to survive the cut-off. He dropped to a second-round 77 after shooting 69 Thursday.

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

CHANGE IN HAND PLACEMENT HELPS MY GAME

A recent change that has helped my game might well do the same for yours.

This change involved the positioning of my hands as I addressed the ball. Illustration #1 shows my old position. You will note that my hands are just a shade farther to the right than they now are in my new position (Illustration #2). With my new position you will note a more direct continuation of left arm and clubshaft than I had before.

Moving my hands farther forward at address puts them in a position more identical to the position they should be in when the clubhead enters the hitting area on the downswing (Illustration #3).

Keeping your hands slightly ahead of the clubhead at address will encourage the average golfer to lead with his left hand and left side on the downswing. He will be more likely to hit down on the ball, rather than to chance a scuffed shot by scooping behind it.

Scottish Cadets Honored

Most efficient cadet corps in B.C. is Victoria's No. 2136 of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), commanded by Capt. A. H. Rabey.

Competition is based on 36 cadet corps in the province and covers all aspects of administration and training.

Ranking second is No. 2308 of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), Alberni.

Announcement came from headquarters B.C. Area, Canadian Army, Vancouver.

LONDON (UPI) — Sotheby's auction house will put the famed Peruvian Crown of the Andes on sale Nov. 21. The gold and emerald crown was part of the Virgin Mary in Popayan, Peru, for centuries. The statue was made in 1590 in gratitude for deliverance from a plague.

ERIC CHARMAN OF FAIRFIELD REALTY IS HOLDING

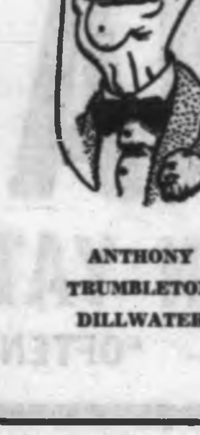

"OPEN HOUSE" at 1977 Fairfield Road

SATURDAY (TODAY), 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Built in 1933, it is rumored that the residence was designed by the well-known architect, Sir Patrick Pilling-Pennington, having been retained by Lady Copelia Carrington, formerly of Shropshire. Curious sort of house—looks like a hideous monstrosity from the exterior but you are in for a surprise once you see within! The ornate Spanish-style walls give a Baronial air to the halls; the drawing room is grand; there are seven bedrooms; four bathrooms (with bathtubs) and numerous water-closets; billiard room.

The panoramic views from every window far exceed the physical capacity of the human eye—even when aided by my powerful monocle. Drive-in garage for three motor-cars. Property is offered at $42,500 ($10,000 down). Owner is prepared to consider old Rolls-Royce or not too moth-eaten ermine robes as part payment.

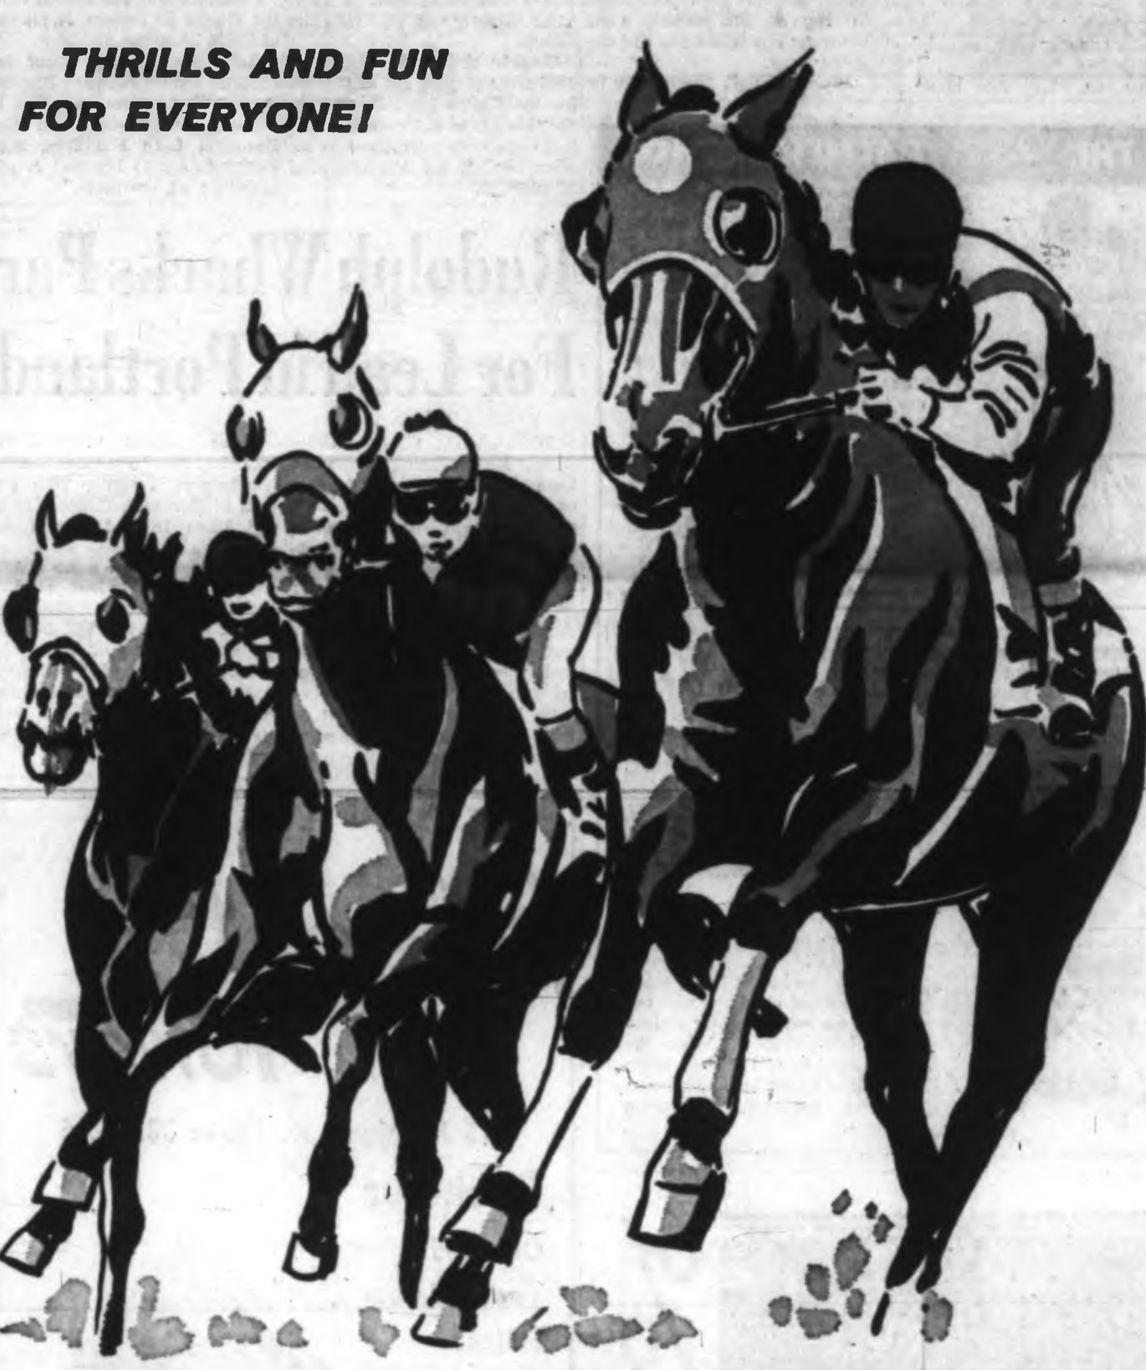

P.S. My dear friend, Agatha Oglethorpe, will be in attendance to serve tea and toasted crumpets to you on Saturday but unfortunately I have to nip over to my London Tailors to get fitted with new Breeches as I am riding people to the polls on Sept. 30th.

Victorian Retires as Liner Skipper

On the last official voyage of his career is Capt. Eric Riddle Connorton, 521 Linden, skipper of the CPR liner Empress of England.

A veteran of 42 years at sea, he sailed from Liverpool Tuesday and will leave the ship in Montreal, Sept. 24.

AT YEAR END

His mother, Mrs. J. R. Connorton, said last night the captain, a bachelor, would drive home and will retire officially at year's end.

Capt. Connorton was educated at Sir James Douglas School and began his seagoing career with the federal merchant marine.

TAKEN OVER

He earned his second mate's certificate in 1935 and served with Canadian National Steamships, which had taken over the government ships.

Appointed chief officer in 1939, he eventually transferred to CPR ships and sailed as fifth officer on the Empress of Russia.

He was aboard the old Empress of Scotland when she was one of the last ships to leave Singapore before that city's capture by the Japanese.

He was later master of the Hampstead Park, second officer of the Beaverford, and chief officer of the Beaverbrae.

In 1954, he became chief officer of the Empress of France and later became chief officer in the Empress of Scotland and Empress of Britain.

FREIGHT FLEET

In 1961 he became master of the Beaverfir, one of the latest additions to the CPR freight fleet.

He left her in August to take over relief duties on the Empress of England and will turn over command of the ship to permanent master Capt. L. H. Jonston in Montreal.

Electricians Back at Work

CALGARY (CP) — Electrical workers in 15 shops declared illegally on strike decided to return to work, a union official said.

E. H. Stark, business agent for Local 254, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the decision was made at a closed meeting Wednesday, during study of an injunction brought against the men by the Association of Calgary Electrical Contractors.

Live Music Week In Final Coda

Live Music Week ends this weekend with a quintet of events.

The woodwind ensemble makes two final appearances today at 3 p.m. at Birks on Yates Street and 7 p.m. in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. During the afternoon, Scottish pipers under Ian Duncan will be skirling their way around town and in and out of various stores.

Overture concerts by the Victoria Symphony orchestra at 3 Sunday and 8.30 Monday in the Royal Theatre bring the week to a close.

Theatre Studio

'Alice' Opens Season

The theatrical season opens today when the Victoria Theatre Studio presents the first performance of Alice in Wonderland.

The Studio is at the corner of Princess Avenue and Chambers Street and curtain time is 1 p.m. Performances continue every Saturday through October.

Director Peter Mannering has made this particular adaptation of Lewis Carroll's immortal story and the cast has Wendy Packard as Alice with Ramona McBean, Dorothea House, Doreen Breeland, Wayne Fines, John Hodder, John Richards, Wolfgang Baba and James Dulmage.

New Look

Shaping performance of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, Montreal conductor Otto-Werner Mueller directs second rehearsal with orchestra since he arrived in Victoria recently. For most of this season, Mr. Mueller is replacing permanent conductor Hans Gruber, who is on year's leave of absence.—(Bud Kingman)

Assistant Planner Appointed

A new assistant planner has been appointed by the Capital Region Planning Board, planning director Anthony Roberts announced yesterday.

George Atamanenko, 34, presently the research planner for Edmonton, will take up his new duties on the CRPB here Oct. 7.

He will replace former assistant planner Darshan Johal, who left here in July for a United Nations post in Ghana.

Mr. Atamanenko was born in New Westminster. He holds a Master of Science degree in community and regional planning from the University of B.C. and has travelled and worked in Europe. He is married and has one son.

New Home Working Well

Juvenile Cases Up

The juvenile detention home is functioning smoothly in its new quarters, city finance committee was told Thursday.

Ald. Lily Wilson, chairman of the intermunicipal committee that runs the Greater Victoria home, noted however that during August it had a record 27 admissions.

"That is more than we've ever had in the home at one time before," Mrs. Wilson said. "There are several possible causes, and we shall be watching carefully in the next few months to determine if there is a new trend."

END OF HOLIDAYS

The most likely explanation for the heavy August admission rate, the chairman added, was that the period included the tag end of the school holidays.

"These last two weeks before the return to school are often an explosive period for young people," she said. Mrs. Wilson added that none of the juvenile offenders had proved obstreperous during their sojourn in the home.

COMMITTEE PLEASED

The committee is "very pleased" with the direction given by Charles W. Eichell, new superintendent of the juvenile home, Mrs. Wilson said.

City manager Dennis Young told the finance committee that another probation officer is urgently needed here.

THREE OFFICERS

The committee was advised that the cabinet as a formality had approved appointment of two probation officers, who have been on the city payroll for the past year, under new family and juvenile court legislation. This brings the number of probation officers serving Greater Victoria to three, Mr. Young said.

This number isn't sufficient, however, to deal with the case load.

U.S. Jaycees to Attend Victoria Installation

Striking Policeman Brings $150 Fines

Two soldiers who pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court Wednesday to a charge of assaulting a policeman were fined $150 each yesterday.

Magistrate J. A. Byers said that although the court of appeal felt jail sentences were appropriate on charges of assaulting an officer, in this case a jail sentence would be double punishment. The young soldiers would be automatically dismissed from the army if sent to jail.

The court was told by a PPCLI officer that both men, Gerald Goodrich and Lloyd Oliver, had good records as soldiers and carried out their work efficiently.

The incident, involving Juvenile Officer Joseph Barlow, who was in plain clothes doing a routine inspection of the Starlight Ballroom, 1313 Government, took place on Friday, Sept. 13.

Juvenile Officer Barlow was struck in the face before the two men were subdued and taken to the police station.

A driver's licence which was turned in to the motor vehicle branch ahead of time led to the dismissal of one charge of driving while under suspension and the withdrawal of a second charge, before Magistrate Byers in city court yesterday.

Court was told Ronald E. Bourke, 2333 Blanshard, received notice that he was to make representation to the Motor Vehicle Branch or his licence would be suspended by Sept. 30.

As he was joining the RCAF and going east Sept. 26, he decided to keep his licence until the day he left.

Before this he lost his original licence and after receiving a duplicate found the original again. The duplicate copy was left at home.

His mother discovered the duplicate in his room and turned it in.

He was picked up on Sept. 17 and again Sept. 19.

Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse argued there had been a misunderstanding. The boy's mother hadn't told him she turned in the licence, court was told.

Magistrate Byers ruled there was reasonable doubt as to intent.

A motorist who told police he was in a hurry to get home and get some sleep before going to work appeared in city magistrate's court on a charge of dangerous driving.

Court was told William E. Parker, 1228 Fort, was paced by the police at 50 miles an hour along Yates Street. He went through red lights at Blanshard and again at Cook.

He was fined $75.

Skimming dross from molten lead.

In this particular kettle—lead, ultimately to be cast into "pigs" for use in Canada and shipment to world markets.

But there are many things "cooking" at Cominco these days, many developments indicative of the expanding operations of the Company.

In Canada, Cominco's growth is reflected by a major increase in fertilizer output, a three-fold expansion of pig iron production, an enlargement of chemical plants and an increase in available power by international exchange. The first Metal Products Research Laboratory devoted solely to research on uses of lead and zinc will be completed by the Company in 1964. A new mine at Pine Point near Great Slave Lake will bring one of the world's largest lead-zinc deposits into production by 1966.

Cominco's interests are global, too. A new project at the Douglas Mine in Montana will produce phosphate rock concentrate for our Elephant Brand fertilizers. In partnership with Indian industrialists we are building a new electrolytic zinc plant and chemical plant at Alwaye in Southern India. And exploration for new mines is being carried out in several countries.

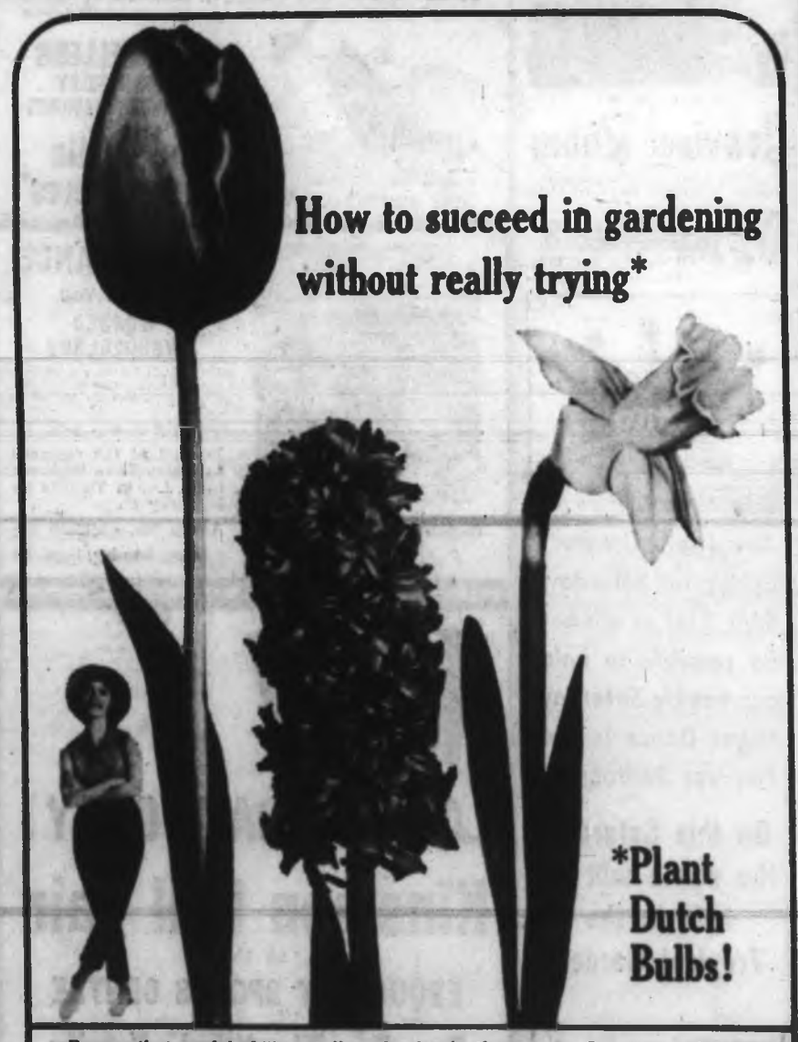

Cominco is growing and changing—not only to meet but also to anticipate the diversified needs of industry and consumers for metals, industrial chemicals and fertilizers.

Borrow that armful of "how to" garden books if you must. But you won't have to read them. Buy those expensive garden tools if you have the urge. But you really won't need them. Because the secret of how to succeed in gardening lies in bulbs that bring forth lovely blossoms in their season. And with minimum effort. Here's how. Dig a little hole. Drop in a daffodil, tulip, hyacinth or crocus bulb, right side up. Cover it. Water it. Walk away. That—and three little words—are all you need. The words? Plant Dutch bulbs. It's your guarantee of a world of beauty at your doorstep, come Spring. Be sure the bulbs say "Imported from Holland." Incidentally, this year you may not find all the varieties you desire due to a short crop. But there should be enough fine varieties to suit your gardening needs. Cat Research Protested In Petitions

At least 400 Greater Victoria residents think brain-wiring shouldn't happen to a cat.

The 400 people are members of the Victoria chapter of the Cats' Protection League Inc., an organization based in England.

RECENT TESTS

The Victoria group is sponsoring a petition protesting recent research experiments at UBC, where electrical impulses are introduced into cats' brains.

A news story on the tests quoted a UBC professor as stating they were a part of research into Parkinson's Disease, but he admitted the meaning of the experiments was "obscure."

WITH REVULSION

Miss Winnifred Hughes, vice-president of the league, calls the tests "meaningless cruelty" and says the group views them with revulsion.

The league has left petitions at three Victoria locations: Adrien's Bakery, 2190 Oak Bay; The Book Exchange, Fort at Vancouver, and the Friendship Centre of the Good Shepherd Centre, Fort at Quadra.

Miss Hughes says the response has been good.

Chamber Probe Urged

Victoria Air Links 'Worse Than Ever'

Connections at Seattle for Trans-Canada Air Lines passengers between there and Victoria are "worse than ever," Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday.

He recommended at a meeting of Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors that the chamber's tourist industry group investigate the situation.

Chamber past president John Wallace said the whole TCA service to Vancouver Island should be looked into.

COMMUTER IGNORED

"It seems to tie in only with eastbound flights, with no concern for the commuter," he said.

Director G. F. Dunn said lack of connections with Canadian Pacific Airlines flights to the B.C. interior means a traveller must go to Vancouver a night in advance.

EFFICIENT FORCE

Victoria's new police chief, G. F. Gregory, told directors he intends to head an efficient police force "and the men I have met so far have given me reason to think we will have an efficient force.

"But a police force is only as good as the backing it gets from its citizens. We must have that backing. We must have that confidence."

GOODWILL TOUR

Bernard Cox, chairman of the chamber's tourist industry group, said the chamber will sponsor a goodwill tour this year to promote tourism to Victoria.

The chamber discontinued goodwill tours by Victoria citizens a couple of years ago when the B.C. government started running them. But, he said, the B.C. government tours, of necessity, represent the whole province.

"I'm not sure where we will go although the trend seems to be to the southern United States."

PLANNING PARLEY

Chamber president E. E. Pearlman said he will call a special meeting of chamber directors and likely the membership, too, to discuss the over-all planning situation in the Greater Victoria area with an authority qualified to deal with the subject. He had not yet picked the man.

Chamber directors will hold a special meeting Oct. 3 at the Union Club to formulate chamber policy on matters to come up at the annual meeting in Quebec City that month of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Smooth First Day

Turns Bring No Mayhem

North Douglas Street looked like Balaclava and outbound motorists resembled the Light Brigade during the 5 p.m. traffic rush last night.

To the untrained eye of a reporter it looked as though everyone on the new road was bent on self-destruction, but at the end of the rush neither Saanich police in whose district most of the new section runs, nor city police who control the section between Burnside and Finlayson, reported as much as a scraped fender.

STOPS ELIMINATED

One confidence seems to be building up in motorists since the new system went in. The lane provided for left-hand turns eliminates the sudden and sometimes embarrassing stops brought about under the old system when a determined motorist would back up a traffic line for three blocks while he waited to cut through oncoming traffic onto his street.

The way things are now, through traffic can get in the two outer lanes and drive straight ahead, confident there will be no need to slam on the brakes for a turning motorist.

NO JAM UPS

While yesterday could not be taken for an official traffic survey it seemed more traffic moved through the new portion of the road more quickly than before. There were no traffic jams.

Pre-rush hour observers noted a few instances when motorists ignored the advice of traffic officials published in the Colonist Friday and got into the centre lane long before it was necessary to make their left turn.

IN SAME LANE

At least twice during a half-hour period two cars, both travelling slowly in opposite directions, were guilty of this act. In both instances the cars were stopped, skirted around one another then continued on their way in the left-hand lane.

In heavy traffic this would not be so easy.

Varsity Students Saw For Charity Today

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

Bathtub-boiled corn on the cob will be featured during today's charity log saw by students of the University of Victoria.

The log saw will start around 2 p.m. when 500 to 600 university students will gather at Clover Point armed with powersaws, axes, wedges and sledgehammers.

The student director of the log saw, Stewart MacDonald, said there has been an enthusiastic response from the students for the event.

The students will cut the logs into firewood suitable for fireplaces or furnaces, and give it to the public in exchange for donations which will be presented to the United Appeal.

The reward for the students will be corn on the cob, boiled in a bathtub on two incinerators, he said.

Hot dogs and refreshments will be served.

The students will wind up the day's work with a folk-singing hootenanny led by several students with guitars.

No Bargaining Rights

Employees' Association 'Meaningless' for Ferries

Announcement yesterday that an employees' association has "representative rights" for B.C. ferries employees was called undemocratic and largely meaningless by an official of a rival union.

Officials of the B.C. Toll Authority announced in Victoria yesterday that the B.C. Government Employees' Association has been given "representative rights" for the 1,200 ship and shore employees of the B.C. ferries.

Bob Cook, president of the marine engineer section of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), said in Vancouver last night that the announcement is "just absolutely stupid."

The CBRT and GW has been claiming considerable support among ferry employees.

APPOINTED UNION

"The fact that any company can tell employees, 'This is the union we appoint for you,' is ridiculous," Mr. Cook said. "It's not done anywhere else in the free world."

And he said the "representative rights" given the BCGEA by the agreement amount to nothing. "They have the right to have their representative go and talk to the government. That's as far as it goes.

"That's what they had last month and the month before."

Mr. Cook said that under normal B.C. labor law when a group of employees tell the government they want to be represented by an organization, the government takes a vote of all those affected.

EVERYWHERE ELSE

"They (the government) do it everywhere in the province except in their own particular organization."

He said the "vast majority" of marine engineers on the ferries are members of the CBRT and GW.

LIKE SERVANTS

"It is very obvious that the government does not want a trade union which demands bargaining rights in the picture. It wants to treat them (ferry employees) like civil servants; that is, like second-class citizens."

Announcement of the agreement between the toll authority and the BCGEA came after a meeting between association officials, including Edward O'Connor of Victoria, and toll authority officials, including general manager M. F. Aldous and assistant general manager Ron Worley.

SAME RIGHTS

Mr. Worley said the "representative rights" mean ferry employees have the same rights as other government employees.

Mr. Cook said the employees' association undoubtedly does have members among the ferry crews, but the independent Seamen's International Union, which also has been claiming support among ferry workers "is just not in the picture."

Appeal Advice

$69,600 Task Tough Job

Sixteen people met Friday in Victoria and were told they had their work cut out for them.

Their job: Raise $69,600 for the 1963 United Appeal.

They are area chairmen, who will direct more than 2,000 individual canvassers in 16 Greater Victoria areas. The house-to-house campaign will run from Oct. 15 to Nov. 3.

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT

Each area chairman will be in charge of from five to eight districts, each with a team captain and about 20 canvassers.

Mrs. T. H. Johns, chief canvasser, said officials are confident they will reach this year's goal of $69,600—15 per cent more than last year's target.

But she says more canvassers are still needed, particularly in the Langford, West Burnside and Wilkinson Road areas. Volunteers may telephone Community Chest officials at EV 5-6708.

Black Ball Plans Extra Sailings

Because of heavy late-season tourist traffic, Black Ball Transport will operate two sailings between Victoria and Port Angeles Sunday instead of the usual one.

The MV Coho sailing which leaves Port Angeles at 7 a.m. and Victoria at 9 a.m., and which normally operates Monday through Saturday, will operate this Sunday.

The regular sailing, which leaves Port Angeles a 11 a.m. and Victoria at 1 p.m., also will operate.

Last Monday the Coho switched from its summer schedule, with four trips daily, to the winter schedule, which normally has two trips daily Monday through Saturday with one Sunday.

Ottawa Cabinet Men In City Wednesday

Two federal cabinet ministers will visit Victoria next week.

Citizenship and Immigration Minister Guy Favreau and Forestry Minister J. R. Nicholson will hold a joint press conference at the Empress Hotel Wednesday at 9 a.m.

The ministers and their wives will call on Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes during the day and will later attend a garden reception at the home of Liberal MP David Groos in honor of Oak Bay Liberal candidate Alan Macfarlane and Mrs. Macfarlane.

Brewery Strike Averted

The threat of a beer strike ended last night when union and management agreed to an 18-cent across-the-board hourly wage increase for members of the Brewery Workers Union (CLC).

Union and management agreed to the 18-cent figure Thursday and members ratified the agreement at meetings in Vancouver and Victoria last night. About 400 mainland workers and 60 in Victoria were affected.

The union originally sought a two-year contract with increases of 13 cents each year. The companies had offered only one 13-cent raise.

The 18-cent boost includes six cents retroactive to Jan. 1 this year, six cents effective immediately and six cents Jan. 1, 1964.

Tradesmen involved in delivery duties at the breweries will receive an additional five cents an hour, retroactive to Jan. 1.

'Factual' Costs Asked for Hall

Centennial Square planners Friday ordered the architect consultants preparing working drawings for the renovation of city hall to provide a "factual account" of costs involved.

The planning committee was given two revised cost estimates, which were not made public. Both exceeded the budgetted $225,000 for renovation of the existing structure.

URGENT MATTER

The cost figure, involving possible need for revision of plans for accommodation within the building, is a matter of extreme urgency.

Construction schedule for Centennial Square calls for award of a single contract for renovation of the hall and construction of the new section by late October or early November.

MOVING AWARD

The committee yesterday gave the contract for moving city hall furniture and effects into the old courthouse on Bastion Square to Stocker's Security Storage and Warehouse Ltd.

Stocker's price of $1,118 was the lowest of eight tenders submitted.

APPREHENSIVE

Architectural consultants Wade, Stockdill and Armour wrote the city it felt "a little apprehensive about cost" on the renovation job and so had engaged a firm of chartered quantity surveyors.

Initial check of the architect's figures confirmed the budget amount had been exceeded. A second check showed a substantial decrease, but the amount still exceeded the allotted $225,000.

CRY WOLF TOO LOUDLY

Roderick Clack, co-ordinating architect, said the consultants admitted "crying wolf a bit too loudly" on the figure contained in their first letter.

"If that letter was wild," asked Mayor R. B. Wilson, "are the consultants prepared to write another letter that isn't wild? We want a factual account of the cost involved."

Trip Today

A group of the Junior Natural History Society will meet at the Monterey parking lot at 1:30 p.m. today for a field trip to Island View Beach.

Consumer Meet

The Canadian Association of Consumers will meet Monday at 2 p.m. in the music room of Victoria Public Library. Mrs. A. B. Young, provincial president, will lead a discussion on consumers in action.

Low Tenders Spur Water Tunnel Job

Construction of the full 5½ miles of Greater Victoria water district tunnel will probably go ahead as the result of unexpectedly low tenders received this week.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, chairman of the district commission, said the bids also indicate a possible long-range reduction in water rates for the area.

NEED THREE YEARS

But it will likely take a giant mechanical mole three years of grinding through 25,700 feet of solid rock before the rate reductions are confirmed by absence of costly difficulties.

The water district increased its wholesale water rates from 11 to 13 cents per 1,000 gallons to offset the cost of the project. Revenue from this boost and other sources has accumulated to approximately $1,400,000 and there is a prospect now of being able to complete the tunnel without borrowing. This could result in a decrease of up to five cents per 1,000 gallons in future wholesale rates.

Low tender of $1,571,810 for the 25,700-foot-tunnel job was submitted by Intermountain Construction of Vancouver. The same firm two years ago did the first 3,000 feet of tunnelling for $250,000.

The completed 8½-foot diameter concrete-lined tunnel will link the Sooke Lake water supply system directly with the Goldstream distributing system, eliminating the present 25-mile cement pipe.

Evangelist Rally Set For Sunday at Temple

An evangelist rally will be held at the Evangelistic Temple, Blanshard and Queens, at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Guest preacher will be Leonard Eilers, well-known evangelist who conducts meeting throughout Canada, the United States, Mexico and Europe.

With him will be Bob Ostrosser, a soloist and song leader who has recently returned from Australia.

Church school teachers of the Victoria Unitarian Church will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Rawling, 1444 Harrop, for a talk by Mrs. Marvin Evans.

A week-long Union Crusade for Christ, sponsored by Crusade Evangelism of Canada, will be held in Central Junior High School auditorium Nov. 10 to 17.

Services will be held at the auditorium each night during the week and are open to people of all faiths.

'Army' Adds Cafeteria

The Salvation Army will open a cafeteria-style dining room for residents at the hostel Monday.

The dining room will dispense economy-priced meals to the residents of the building at 521 Johnson.

A Salvation Army spokesman said the facilities are part of a major remodeling program, begun early this year. The project will be completed this fall.

Catholic Church for Israel Built to Last 1,000 Years

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Israel will get a new Roman Catholic church designed to stand for 1,000 years.

It is being built here on the spot where it was said an angel appeared to Mary, mother of Jesus Christ, and told her He had risen from the dead.

The new Church of the Annunciation will be the largest in the Middle East, holding 6,000 worshippers. First phase of construction will cost an estimated $2,000,000 — the second phase may amount to twice that.

The site is above a small cave—inhabited centuries before Christ—and the remains of five previous chapels, basilicas and churches.

The new building will be one of the most complex structures ever built in Israel and was designed by noted Italian architect Giovanni Muzio of Milan.

The plan preserves archeological finds on the site, such as an ancient temple dating back to the first Christian community in Nazareth.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Have you ever considered how easily popular superstitions become established in the public mind and are accepted as fact? I have challenged friends of mine who consider themselves sports authorities to prove from the record that Dempsey was a great fighter. They look at me pityingly and turn away. I have challenged Bible scholars to prove from the record that Jezebel was not in many ways an admirable woman. They, too, look at me as if I were queer.

In these instances it doesn't matter which side we take, but sometimes it turns out to be vitally important. Take a few popular superstitions selected at random which are quite wrong.

Right or Wrong

That the Puritans were abnormal, enemies of humanity, the arts, and social goodness. This is utterly false. No people contributed more to freedom, justice, and human progress.

That Jews aren't farmers. This is wrong. In many nations they were not allowed to own land, but they were originally farmers and in Palestine are proving themselves superb farmers.

That accidents are caused most frequently by speed. They are not. Speed increases the penalty, but in most cases carelessness is involved.

That Socialism is more Christian and kindly than free, democratic society. In practice it's oppressive, bureaucratic, inefficient, and brutally impersonal.

Give Us Courage

The dignity and unity of man depend on a rediscovery and rededication to the realm of truth. Judgment Day is a fearful prospect, but yet a glad one. It is a time when the false is exposed and the true revealed. Meanwhile may God give us the necessary hope and courage!

$60,000 Special Goal

The Canadian Bible Society will seek a $60,000 special offering this fall as its first contribution to the world-wide campaign God's Word for a New Age, it was announced this week.

Purpose of the offering is to treble scripture printing and distributing over the next three years.

Goal of the world's Bible Societies, which distributed 50,000,000 portions of scripture during 1962, is the distribution of 150,000,000 portions in 1966. Most of the increase will come through the British and Foreign Bible Society, which is affiliated with the Canadian society.

Christianity In Transition And Evolution

Mankind existing today, represents important parts coming down through the centuries by will power and Providence. Endless growth with inventive genius insures duration in cities and all round about. And dedication to the various tasks offer assistance for multitudes as yet unborn.

Simple and easy fitting lines of Canadian fall fashions are intended to give comfort with elegance. Three of the season's popular looks are from left: the ski look of stretch pants with a white poodle overblouse and hooded jacket of Canadian wildcat; the layered look with looped mohair jumper over silk shirt; and finally the shift dress, belted or loose, in wools or luxurious fabrics for daytime and evening.—(CP Photo)

Accessories Highlight Clothes at Style Show

When it comes to eye appeal it's the accessories that count. This advice was keynote of the fashion show sponsored by United Church Women of First United Church, Wednesday afternoon, in Fellowship Hall.

Suits and dresses were simple and classic, but a striking wide-brimmed or high-crowned hat, a handsome leather bag and a distinctive hand-made pin gave the ensemble that "eye-catching" appeal.

Emphasis was on large sparkling pins with matching bracelets and copper set with semi-precious stones was newest in jewelry fashion.

Fashions ranged from afternoon and evening to bedtime wear. Negligees in filmy drip-dry nylon misted from the shoulder, sometimes stopping at the knee and sometimes the ankle. Lounge suits for fall are bold with satin-brocaded tops and sassy knee-length black pants.

Styles and fabrics stretched across the Pacific to the Orient for inspiration.

Cranberry red is the color to watch for. It was seen in both costumes and accessories.

And what could look better with cranberry red than a sapphire mink stole. It complimented the costume and the model.

Mrs. L. R. Hall introduced the show and commentator, Mrs. A. H. Sheard.

Models were Mrs. Ross MacKinnon, Mrs. Walter Fletcher, Miss Bonita Robbins, Miss Verna Beek and Mrs. Doris Usher. Soloist and model was Miss Norma Valiant.

Guests were entertained with soft organ music provided by Mrs. Kay Pulleybank.

On the stage and walkway bronze, yellow and white chrysanthemums set an autumn note. Tea tables were attractively centred with brightly-colored feathered dahlias and chrysanthemums.

The many guests were received by Mrs. R. J. D. Morris, Mrs. Sheard and Mrs. L. R. Hall. Proceeds amounted to approximately $285.

Conveners of the fashion show and desert party were Mrs. L. R. Hall and Mrs. R. A. Marquis. Flower conveners were Mrs. W. A. Macdonald and Mrs. William Harrison.

The Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild will hold its first meeting of the season on Sept. 24 in the Art Gallery on Moss Street. Smorgasbord supper starts at 6 p.m., followed at 8 p.m. by a business meeting and showing of slides.

Victoria Man Weds Girl in Edmonton

Pink and white gladiolus decorated Metropolitan United Church in Edmonton, Alta., when Audrey Joan Rossaky exchanged vows with Edmund Ivey Gerard. Dr. Theodore Bay officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. G. Rossaky of Edmonton; Mrs. N. Bryen, Victoria, and the late E. Gerard.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie that was fashioned with lily point sleeves and a scalloped neckline. The waist was fitted and a bustle gave back interest.

Lace appliques enhanced the shoulder-length veil that was held in place with a rosette of nylon tulle. Trailing ivy edged the bouquet of deep red gladiolus. Only jewelry was a single strand of culture pearls, gift of the groom.

Sheath gowns of blue peau de soie and toning lace jackets were worn by maid of honor, Miss Margaret William, and bridesmaids, the Misses Shirley and Beverley Meketiak. They wore halos of blue peau de soie and lace petals in their hair and carried pink gladiolus bouquets.

The groom wore the dress uniform of a second lieutenant, Royal Canadian Dental Corps. His best man was Garry Pepin and ushers were Robert Hamilton and William Ebert.

SIX-TIER CAKE

A six-tier wedding cake centred the head table at the reception which followed in McKernan Hall. Dr. Bay proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

An orchestra played for dancing. Many relatives and friends from out-of-town attended.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride donned a turquoise Italian knit suit, toning feathered hat, black accessories and white corsage.

Newlyweds will make their home in Edmonton where the groom will take his third year of studies at the faculty of dentistry of the University of Alberta.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Soon our brilliant, handsome son will be leaving for a mediocre state university which is situated in a hick town. Why? Because his "Know-It-All" father wouldn't listen to me, or to the boy's high school advisers.

My husband, a prominent and successful businessman, was determined that our boy would go to Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth or Rutgers. Against everyone's advice, he took it upon himself to write letters to the presidents of these schools offering gifts, with promises of more.

He pressured influential friends and business associates, who were graduates of these schools, to write letters in behalf of our son.

I feel certain that with the boy's fine scholastic record, his extracurricular activities and his high rating in the college boards he would surely have made one of these schools if his father had not put the heat on. Please print this letter as a warning to other fathers to lay off.—HEARTSICK MOM.

Dear Mom: Your husband acted unwisely, to be sure. But it would be incorrect to say his actions ruined the boy's chances. The kind of pressure he exerted neither helps nor hinders. Usually, it is ignored.

Heaven only knows why some students are accepted and others not. Saddest of all is that the kids are often made to feel like failures if they aren't accepted by the schools their parents prefer.

Meanwhile, take comfort in the fact that your son may well be happier, and do better, at the state university (hick town and all) than he would have done in all that Ivy.

Dear Ann Landers: This is one for the books. I have heard of married men telling girls they are single but have you ever heard of a single man telling a girl he is married?

I met this fellow when I was waiting tables in a respectable cafe. He was a customer. He told me on our first date that he was married, that he and his wife did not get along but he was staying with her because of the children.

Every time we went out and I mentioned his wife he changed the subject. I got suspicious and questioned a woman who worked in the same company. I found out that he is not married and never has been. What do you make of this? — DYNAMITE DOROTHY.

Dear Dynamite: The man is a slippery eel who is interested solely in entertainment. By telling you he was married he was making it clear that he was no candidate for the altar.

And strictly for your information, T.N.T., a man who really IS married "but is not getting along with his wife" is no red-hot candidate either.

Dear Ann: My wife and I have been married seven years and are ready to build a home. My wife's kid brother got out of college recently and is a struggling young architect. He has offered to design our home "as a gift."

To put it bluntly I don't care for his ideas. He goes for far-out modern design which leaves me cold. My wife is even MORE conservative, but she doesn't know how to turn down her brother's offer.

We've managed to steer clear of commitment so far but whenever we get together her brother wants to talk about it. What can you suggest? —VOOM.

Dear Voom: Unless you or your wife speak up you may wind up living in a house you hate.

The brother should be told that his offer is generous but you can't accept it because you have some goofy ideas of you own which you're sure won't be compatible with his.

Garden Notes

Nothing Can Beat It

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES

Even though our flowers are still blooming their heads off and the vegetable plot is still yielding its bounty, it is well to remember that the start of another busy planting season is already upon us. The flood of bulb and nursery catalogues is a sure sign of this.

Your fall planning should certainly include a program for soil building, since gardening success depends so much upon the conditioning of the soil.

As I have mentioned so many times, it isn't enough to scatter chemical fertilizer on the ground every year—valuable as these plant nutrients are, they do nothing for the texture of the soil, and they must be supplemented with bulky organic materials which will renew the supply of precious humus.

For the efficient conditioning of soil, there is still nothing to beat a load of mellow old manure, preferably dug in shallowly during the fall and early winter months. Under its influence, hungry, sandy soil becomes more retentive of moisture, while heavy, sticky clay becomes more friable and more congenial to plant roots.

Manure contains some plant food, of course, but in a not-too-well-balanced form, and should be supplemented by summer dressings of fertilizer. In addition to its useful bulk and soil-building qualities, manure is about our only practicable source for essential but obscure hormones and enzymes secreted within the body of the animal.

Where manure is not available or inconvenient to use, green manure crops make excellent soil conditioners, and of these, rye is about the best, and I mean rye the grain, not rye grass. Rye produces a thick mass of deeply growing fibrous roots which, when turned under, adds a grand supply of humus-forming material to the soil.

This addition changes the whole character of the soil. It retains moisture better and it has a better structure, clumping the tiny soil particles together to form a "crumb" which admits air more readily. It is easier to work, more congenial to root growth, and chemical fertilizers don't get washed out so easily during the winter rains.

Sow rye on ground as it comes vacant at the rate of three pounds per 1,000 square feet, raking it in to a depth of about an inch, then tread or roll with lawn roller. Given sufficient soil moisture, the grain should be up within a week.

The cover crop of rye will continue to grow all through the fall until really severe weather arrives, during which it will stand still, making no growth above ground, but covering the soil to break the force of the winter rain which would otherwise puddle the ground. Root growth continues through the winter except when the ground is actually frozen, and the whole works can be turned under in the spring well in advance of sowing or planting time.

Always give the green manure crop a good sprinkle of fertilizer before digging it in. Seeds of fall rye will cost 10 cents a pound in small quantities, about half this amount in 100-pound sacks.

On land which is to remain uncropped next year, a good green manure crop is crimson clover—not red clover, which is a different variety. Crimson clover is an annual, and if sown within the next couple of weeks, it will germinate and make some growth this fall, persisting through the winter, then resuming growth very early next spring. Turned under in midsummer, it will leave the soil in grand shape for the planting of fruit trees, shrubs, perennial flowers and the like next fall.

Unlike rye, clover actually enriches the soil with nitrates, thanks to the nitrogen-fixing bacteria which live on the roots. Crimson clover is sown at the rate of half a pound per 100 square feet, and costs about 50 cents per pound.

JOHN CROSBY Learns Language of Love

French 'No' May Be Maybe

PARIS—A bunch of the boys were talking about the language of love the other day and old Bairnsfeather pointed out that the very nature of the French language and of the English language told a lot about the practices of love in those countries.

"Now you take the word yes, for example," said old Bairnsfeather. "When a French girl says yes, she doesn't say yes; she says oui. It's wee! It's like wow! That's a very affirmative word, oui. You pull the lips back and let her rip. Oui!"

He rubbed his cheek a moment reflectively, not wishing to push the thought. Then he said: "Now let us consider the word yes. You can't even say yes—if you say it properly—without gritting your teeth. When a girl says yes, she's in effect got her teeth clenched. She's saying, 'Oh, all right, if you insist.' It's a sibilant word. The girl's hissing at you, really."

Old Bairnsfeather filled his pipe, tamped it down, took a long pull. Then he said: "Now let us consider the word no.

The English no is a much more negative no than the French non. When a girl says no, she opens her mouth and says, 'No!' It comes with a built-in exclamation point.

"There's something awfully no about no. Now you take the French non. When a French girl says non, there's a strong element of perhaps in there. The air is charged with maybe, maybe not. The door on the discussion is not closed."

He thought it over for a long moment. Then he added: "Have you ever seen a French girl saying non? Her mouth is in a perfect position to be kissed."

Old Bairnsfeather relit his pipe, puffed a moment, then he said: "Now let us pass on to the word—very important in the history of amorous dalliance—help! If a girl really wants to be let alone and she has a good strong pair of lungs and she rears back and yells help!—well, you can hear it for miles! It's enough to scare an aggressor out of his head."

"Now, consider the French expression for help. Au secours! Have you ever tried calling out au secours? I once twisted my ankle in the French Alps and I called, 'Au secours!' Didn't travel five feet. How could it? You call out au secours and you wind up with your mouth in a neat little o. Again, a French girl calling out au secours doesn't sound or look at all as if she wants help; she's got her lips puckered up again as if she wants to be kissed.

"These differences in language," he concluded, "all tell a great deal about the nature, the attitude, the quality, and the practice of love in the two countries."

We all looked at him with admiration. There's no doubt he'd formulated his theorems only after long, hard thought.

But there was the rub, the flaw in the thing. Smathers, the sourpuss, was the first to point it out.

"Bairnsfeather," he snorted, "do you know any French girls?"

"No," said Bairnsfeather tranquilly.

"Do you know any English girls?"

"No," said Bairnsfeather.

"Know any girls at all?"

"No," said Bairnsfeather calmly.

"Well, then, how in the devil did you arrive at these ridiculous conclusions?"

"Pure exercise in intellect," said old Bairnsfeather, puffing away at his pipe tranquilly. "Like Einstein arrived at the theorem $E=mc^2$. Einstein arrived at his theory in the lofty recesses of pure thought. So did I. We both leave the practical application and the proof to other lesser mortals."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

'Queen Likes Ben Casey'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—The Queen of England watches Ben Casey on her own palace TV set, it says here. And "here" is from Vince Edwards' press agent. The same note tells me that the Queen included a short personal note praising Vince as Dr. Casey, in the envelope inviting him to the royal command performance of his picture The Victors in October. Which the Queen, expecting a baby, will not attend.

Cara Williams said no to the magazine that wanted a "frank" account of her unhappy marriage to John Barrymore Jr. She prefers to let sleeping juniors lie . . . Cary Grant says he will never be seen on television, except in his old movies, of course, and how young he looks in them. At NBC, the notation on Mr. Grant's file reads, "Won't do television. Turned down highest single guest fee." What does Cary want with more money?

Elizabeth Taylor won her argument as usual, and if she still wants to star in The Sandpiper, producer Marty Ransahoff will sign Richard Burton to be her co-star—if Richard wants the part, that is, for $500,000, he probably will. They will make the movie in Hollywood next summer.

Richard Boone swears by his Have Gun, Will Travel insignia that he is not getting a divorce as printed elsewhere, and for further proof, cites the fact that he and his wife have just bought a new home in the Palisades.

And now for ye jolly old dirty old Carpetbaggers again. It seems it is not the nudity in this picture, which is considerable, that is bothering the censors, it's the heavy breathing in the bedroom scene between Carroll Baker—and she's such a quiet girl in real life—and George Peppard, who is ditto, a quiet man. Some of the panting is being redubbed in a lower key.

Venetia Stevenson and her newly reconciled, singing star husband Don Everly will spend six weeks in Europe—they left last week—on a combination second honeymoon and business tour. Don's brother Phil is along to make some recordings at various armed forces bases.

Gene Kelly does a Mark Anthony take-off in his "What a Way to Go" film with Shirley MacLaine, and ends the spasm with, "and they dared to sign Richard Burton for the role." Gene also does a Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers take-off with Shirley and she's the girl who can dance it with him. Gene is Pinky, one of Shirley's five husbands in the story.

Charlton Heston's Major Dundee has a good role for Joel Grey. And Joel is on top of the world after spending the summer playing the Anthony Newley role on the road in Stop the World—I Want to Get Off. Joel will probably replace Tony when the star leaves the show in November. Also Jack Webb will test him for the Warners No Time for Sergeants TV show. Apart from this, Joel has nothing to do.

Wander Year Enriches Siebner

It was an extremely interesting evening Tuesday with the joint showing of Herbert Siebner's Wander Year and the collages by Roy Kiyooka of Vancouver.

No two approaches could be more strongly contrasted — the forceful and direct statement of the Siebner work with its richness of color, and the stark black and white of the cleverly contrived collages assembled by Mr. Kiyooka.

This past year of roaming through Europe appears to have greatly enriched Siebner's experience, and there is a more immediate response shown to the mood of his environment.

It has passed through a process of selection by the artist in which the whole has been scrutinized to obtain the individual part on which the theme might be based.

The impression I had when I first saw Siebner's new work was that Turkey had the strongest impact on him. Istanbul was his first contact with the East in its widest sense.

The burning blues of sky and water, the luminous near-blacks of the towers of the mosques, the rich yellows, browns and muted greens, were all fine material for the painter.

In the small, on-the-spot sketches, the moment of time in which he has been transported has been seized and been made full use of.

His superb draftsmanship has enabled him to put the experience on paper with instantaneous reaction to the subject.

There is a new freedom in his compositions. Tiergarten has breadth of style and freshness of color, the black notes of the figures creating a rhythm, through the composition Carrera, a movement of etoilated colors. The rich blacks, browns and greys of The Gate complete a group of the handsomest paintings in the collection.

But this requires more than one visit, and there are still Kiyooka's collages to be discussed in my next review.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BAREFOOT—In loving memory of our dear mother, Nan, who passed away on Sept. 21, 1962.
Without farewell she fell asleep,
Leaving only memories for us to keep.
But in our hearts she will always stay,
Loved and remembered every day.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by her daughter Kay and her husband Harry and family at Ladysmith, B.C.

CALLAN—In loving memory of mother, Ann Callan, who passed away September 21, 1959.
The flowers we place upon your grave may wither and decay,
But love for you still within our hearts will never fade away.
—Amy and Charlie.

MASON—In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Robert L. Mason, who passed away Sept. 21, 1962.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Ever remembered by his wife Bertha, son Arnold, daughter Charlotte, son-in-law Larry and the grandchildren Laurie and Kerry Lewis.

"FOREST"
CEDAR

A new cedar
for Beauty
Long Life
Economy

"FOREST"
Siding?

A new and attractive type of siding that comes from specially selected cedar logs sawn to bring out all the distinctive character of knots, burls and grain.

How Does
"FOREST" compare with

It has more thickness, greater wood volume to add structural strength to any building. Its snug fitting makes good insulation and its low cost makes it ideal for modest budget home builders or remodelers.

How to finish
"FOREST"

"Forest" has a distinctive horizontal shadow line that will enhance the beauty of your home.
If you wish to preserve the natural rustic effect of "Forest" apply a coat of oil filler first, then varnish or shellac. "Forest" siding also takes paint beautifully if you wish a colored finish.

YOU can easily
apply "FOREST"
cedar siding

Many home owners have applied this modern, beautiful "Forest" siding themselves without the slightest difficulty.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Some players believe in taking a trick when they can, "before the rats get it." Others believe in ducking and finessing at every possible opportunity. Both groups are right some of the time; both would be wrong—and right—on this deal.

Vul: Both

♣ A J 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	3♥	Pass
4♥	All Pass

Opening lead: Club king

North wanted to go in two directions at once in responding to one heart. His distribution suggested a no trump game, but his four-card heart support indicated a heart game. The raise to three hearts showed game values and virtually insisted on a heart contract. North realized that South was very likely to have a ruffing value, but if South's hand were balanced, he could try three no trump. A good alternative for North was two no trump, with the intention of showing heart support if an opportunity presented itself.

When West led the club king, South correctly made the routine play of allowing the king to hold. This play with an ace-jack holding was christened the "Bath Coup" by whist players over a century ago.

West shifted to the diamond eight, and declarer had to play carefully. If he took the diamond finesse, East would win and return a club. This would ensure four tricks for the defence—two clubs, one diamond and one spade.

Declarer avoided this trap. He put up dummy's diamond ace at trick two, and drew trumps. He followed with a spade, making sure to be able to discard his jack club on an established spade in dummy. Thus, the defence could make only one club, one diamond and one spade.

The Representative

Bitter German Play May Cause Uproar

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The most controversial play of the year. That's what critics are calling The Representative, a bitter German play about Pope Pius XII that is being presented by the Royal Shakespeare Company in London.

The play, written by a 32-year-old Protestant, Rolf Hochhuth, accuses the wartime pontiff of failing to use his influence to stop Nazi persecution of the Jews. It caused an uproar among Roman Catholics when first performed in West Berlin last February.

Later it drew a sharp letter from Cardinal Montini, now Pope Paul VI, protesting its "unjust" portrayal of Pope Pius.

The title, in German Der Stellventreter, is sometimes translated as The Vicar, and alludes to the status claimed by the Pope as representative or vicar of Christ.

Many of the characters are based on real-life figures. The core of the play is the conflict between the Pope and a young Jesuit priest who finally grows so disillusioned with his superior's complacent attitude that he chooses death with the Jews in the gas chamber.

The part of the late Pope is being played in London by British actor Alan Webb, who bears an uncanny resemblance to the ascetic Pius.

RAN EIGHT HOURS

In Berlin the play ran for eight hours, but it has since been cut to three and the author has rewritten some passages. The Lord Chamberlain, responsible for censoring plays in Britain, has made a "few small cuts" which he felt might cause unnecessary offence to Roman Catholics.

But the play is still likely to spark some fierce arguments. In a letter to The Tablet, a British Roman Catholic newspaper, the present Pope wrote after the Berlin production that the play "entirely misrepresents" the character of Pius XII.

As Cardinal Montini, Pope Paul was Vatican secretary of state for 20 years and Pius's right-hand man during the Second World War. He says Hochhuth's accusations "betray an inadequate grasp of psychological, political and historical realities" — any action by Pius against the Nazi atrocities would only have resulted in worse reprisals, possibly against German Catholics.

The Pope's letter says it is impossible to judge from hindsight what could have been effectively done under the pressures of the time.

"An attitude of protest and condemnation, such as this young man blames the Pope for not having adopted, would have been not only futile but harmful. . . . What is the gain to art and culture when the theatre lends itself to this sort of injustice?"

Terms of Reference

Mayor Plans Parley On Lake Valuation

Mayor R. B. Wilson said Thursday he will discuss with Reeve Stanley Murphy the question of proposed terms of reference for the commission which is to establish a recreational value for city-owned Elk-Beaver Lake properties.

The commission—Evan Jones, chairman, city nominee L. E. Pope and Saanich nominee George Burrell — informed the municipalities it considers terms of reference "essential" in the task ahead.

STRAIGHTFORWARD

"In my opinion valuation of the city's lands for recreational purposes is a fairly straightforward question," Mayor Wilson said.

The commission may have some questions, however, the mayor said, and he will discuss with the reeve of Saanich advisability of setting up further conditions for carrying out the study. It is hoped the study will begin in earnest Oct. 10.

TWO EXPENDITURES

Finance committee recommended two sizable expenditures out of contingency funds Thursday, $17,000 for reconstruction of the roundabout at Fountain Circle, and a further $11,000 for purchase of a strip of property on Fort adjoining the new Bentall building now under construction.

These and other minor withdrawals from the fund will leave it, with more than three months remaining in 1963, with only $9,000, considerably below the $20,000 balance at the close of 1962.

SHARE CREST COST

The committee also recommended that the city share the $66 cost of purchasing crests for members of the Carnarvon Pony League baseball team that played in National City, Calif. Private subscriptions will be used to buy the team blazers.

Air Pollution Cancer Cause?

TORONTO (CP)—City air pollution may be a cause of lung cancer and chronic bronchitis, suggests a special report presented to the metropolitan Toronto works' committee Thursday. The report, which drew much of its information from the Toronto board of health and other expert organizations, noted that the death rate from lung cancer and chronic bronchitis is much higher in urban areas than in rural communities.

Canada Told:

Export Plan 'Crazy'

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States took issue Friday with the Canadian government's proposal to expand Canada's automotive production either by increasing the U.S. market for Canadian automobile factory products or reducing Canadian automotive imports.

"We don't like it and we put up a damn good case against it," said Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges as the joint Canada-U.S. cabinet conference adjourned for two dinner meetings.

PLAN "SCREWY"

Another high U.S. source described the Canadian plan as "screwy" and said "it sounds more like Mexico than Canada."

C. M. Drury, defence production minister, later conceded in talks with reporters that he had failed to make his case for the Canadian plan during closed-door sessions of the economic and trade conference. But he said he would return to the task of trying to persuade the Americans the plan had merit.

PAYMENTS BROKEN

"If the U.S. takes the position there should be no reduction in sales to Canada or no increase in sales to the U.S. then there is no possibility of anything being done on our balance of payments problem."

Canada, he said, has a trade deficit with the U.S. amounting to some $850,000,000 a year. Canada had to do something to reduce this deficit and the step that had to be taken would be "something less than reciprocity" in trade with the U.S. Otherwise, Canada would not be able to achieve a reduction.

OPEN DOOR OR ELSE

Under the Canadian manufacturing expansion plan, as outlined by Drury, the U.S., as Canada's top market, either would have to open its doors wider to Canadian manufactured goods or Canada would have to impose restrictions on imports from the U.S.

Hodges suggested that if Canada wants to reduce its international payments deficit by expanding exports, it should call an export conference, such as the White House conference held earlier this week, "and offer us goods."

To this, Drury later remarked: "What would the Americans like us to export to them? Tropical fruits?"

Ontario Teen-Ager

Search Army Of 10,000 Out Today

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI)—Search organizers hope to enlist an army of 10,000 volunteers today to comb the Bowmanville area for missing 13-year-old Noreen Greenley.

The girl disappeared last Saturday night while walking the short distance between the home of a girlfriend and her house in nearby Maple Grove. The search to date has failed to turn up a clue and her father, Harvey Greenley, believes "someone has got her."

Some 400 volunteers, aided by two aircraft, combed a 15-square mile area Thursday in a driving rainstorm and an equal number turned out Friday.

TWO GROUPS

The hunt is being organized by the Ontario provincial police and the emergency measures organization.

Workers at the General Motors plant in Oshawa, where the girl's father is employed, are expected to turn out in large numbers along with Boy Scouts and "almost every resident of Maple Grove." The father hopes to obtain hunting dogs to aid in the search.

BIG MILL POND

A pump was used as searchers began to drain a 30-acre mill pond near Lake Ontario.

The girl was last seen after leaving her friend's home and her father believes she was abducted by a stranger in a car. Her mother described her as "quiet and shy" and said she would never accept a ride with a stranger.

Baby Saved

Phone Girl Heroine

OTTAWA (CP) — A panic-stricken mother saved her infant son's life by following instructions from a telephone operator on how to administer artificial respiration.

The mother, Mrs. Leo Sabourin of Ottawa, discovered her five-month-old son Christopher apparently lifeless in his crib with his face pressed against a plastic bib.

She carried the infant to a downstairs telephone, dialed operator Mrs. Judy Dallaire, 21, for help and followed instructions from the alert operator, who, from memory, gave her a step-by-step procedure for mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration.

Mrs. Dallaire simultaneously summoned help, but by the time it arrived, the child already was regaining consciousness.

Ottawa Word Coming

The Social Credit government expects an announcement from Ottawa on the Columbia River development immediately after the Sept. 30 election, Recreation Minister Westwood told a rally of 25 spectators in Ladysmith last night.

Regarding the Peace River project he said "B.C. will be faced with a blackout by 1968" if the development does not proceed.

"Extra power is urgently needed to develop B.C. natural resources," he said, "besides providing the cheapest power development in the world."

Bennett Vs. Hecklers

By TERRY HAMMOND

Premier Bennett told the biggest and roughest meeting of the 1963 election campaign in Victoria's Royal Theatre last night that, if any B.C. political party has integrity, it is his.

He lashed out at Tory Leader Fulton for the appointment to a judgeship of one of his former law partners and said Liberals and Conservatives had governed B.C. by secret orders-in-council while the socialists stood idly by and let them do it.

"To keep this secret is a crime and a disgrace against democracy.

"In 22 years representing South Okanagan my business has not done one cent of business with the government departments — not one cent," he thundered.

SPECIAL LIST

He said previous governments had allocated business by special list while his had eliminated patronage.

His speech was constantly interrupted by hecklers among the 1,350 people who all but filled the theatre. The crowd was about 300 smaller than at his Victoria rally in 1960, but that was his final pre-election meeting.

NEVER WILL

"We have never yielded to a pressure group yet and as long as I am premier we never will," he said.

"That's what Sommers told me the other day," shouted a heckler, referring to the former forest minister convicted on bribery charges in 1958.

The premier ignored the sally.

He said the government has appointed people to various jobs without thought to their political beliefs.

SOME GOOD

"Yes, down the list the odd Social Crediter has been given a job because, believe it or not, there are some good Social Crediters."

It was the premier's fourth speech of the campaign and the third in which he has made no major pledges of new projects or policies. In West Vancouver Wednesday he said

Troika Goes To Court

CLEVELAND (AP) —Edgar DeMeyer of Hampden, Mass., filed a $150,000 damage suit in U.S. district court Friday against Cyrus Eaton, contending he was injured while riding in the Canadian-born Cleveland industrialist's Russian troika last year.

The troika, a carriage pulled by three horses, was a gift to Eaton from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Mme. Nhu Prefers Mao

Nikita Chief Peril

ATHENS (AP) — Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu said Friday Soviet Premier Khrushchev "is cleverer and therefore more dangerous" than Red China's boss, Mao Tse-tung.

"I have nothing to say about President Kennedy, but I think Mrs. Kennedy is glamorous and should be admired."

The chic, politically powerful first lady of South Viet Nam summed up her views on these world figures in two interviews, 500 miles apart.

Mme. Nhu discussed the Communist chieftains at the close of a nine-day visit to Belgrade and made her remark about the Kennedys under questioning of Greek reporters on her arrival by Yugoslav airliner in Athens for an overnight visit.

The petite 38-year-old sister-in-law and official hostess of President Ngo Dinh Diem said the Khrushchev type of coexistence is not genuine.

"It is only a form of subversion," she said. "Khrushchev wants world domination just like Mao Tse-tung. But while Mao is loud, beating the drums, Khrushchev pursues his aims quietly. The means of Khrushchev might succeed much easier than those of Mao."

Joint Moon Shot Urged by JFK

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — President Kennedy suggested Friday that the Soviet Union and the United States combine talents in a joint expedition to the moon.

"Why . . . should man's first flight to the moon be a matter of national competition?" he asked in a policy speech before the United Nations General Assembly.

"Why should the United States and the Soviet Union, in preparing for such expeditions, become involved in immense duplications of research, construction and expenditure?"

Kennedy made the moon-

NEW JOINT EFFORTS

Kennedy made the moon-flight suggestion in calling for new joint efforts by the two big powers in the space field.

He said he was encouraged by the statement of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to the assembly Thursday on banning nuclear weapons in space.

AGREES WITH PEARSON

He also echoed the view of Canada's Prime Minister Pearson Thursday that the UN force should be kept in The Congo past the end of this year.

And, apparently referring to Canada and the Scandinavian countries, he said he hoped that "the recent initiative of several members in preparing standby peace forces for UN call will encourage similar commitments by others. This nation remains ready to provide logistic and other material support."

After the speech, Kennedy and Pearson were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Secretary-General U Thant. The 50

Gromyko Pleased

Speech Praised By Reds, West

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Delegates from Communist countries as well as the free world Friday reacted warmly to President Kennedy's speech to the United Nations General Assembly.

"It was a very good speech," said Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko. "It was conciliatory and it seems to give hope for further agreement."

Sir Patrick Dean, head of the British delegation, called the address "moving and inspiring."

Ambassador Muhammad Zafrullah Khan of Pakistan, last year's president of the General Assembly, said: "This is a real leadership speech . . . President Kennedy is a good speaker but this speech is his best."

Ambassador B. N. Chakravarty of India said the speech was "excellent, effective."

"He has given us lines to follow and much food for thought," he said, "especially through those passages concerning disarmament and international trade . . ."

In Moscow last night Soviet news media reported at length President Kennedy's General Assembly speech but omitted mention of his suggestion for a joint Russian-American expedition to the moon.

Western observers interpreted the omission as an indication that the Soviet Union would react to Kennedy's suggestion in cautious fashion.

In principle, the Soviet Union has endorsed the idea of joint American-Soviet space co-operation.

Has U.S. Moon Solo Gone Sour?

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Underlying President Kennedy's dramatic proposal for a joint U.S.-Soviet moon expedition may be a feeling that perhaps the United States going it alone cannot beat the Russians to the lunar surface.

The suggestion, made before the United Nations Friday, comes at a time when the slip is showing noticeably on U.S. plans for manned and unmanned exploration of the moon. Public enthusiasm for the project apparently is waning, costs are spiralling and the U.S. Congress no longer is rubber stamping space agency money requests.

Some officials who are doing the spade work at Cape Canaveral for the lunar landing effort expressed surprise at the president's proposal. They agreed that a combined U.S.-Russian effort would help world tensions, but they were disappointed at the indication Kennedy is ready to abandon the great national goal of being first on the moon.

When Kennedy declared the United States in the race in May, 1961, with a target of landing astronauts on the moon before 1970, there was general national enthusiasm. A few sceptics said the president's decision was rash, made hastily in the wake of Russia's achievement of orbiting the first man. They noted Russia had a tremendous lead with superior rocket power.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration rallied to Kennedy's cause. They said a manned landing on the moon is possible

TOFINO—A dock, a float and a quarter-mile of road now are a reality for the 63-year-old Christie's Residential School, thanks to Oblate Brother Reginald O'Brien.

Due to his perseverance, his helpers, and the loan of a bulldozer by Father O'Connor of Williams Lake, the delivery of freight and passengers to the school has been greatly simplified.

Ever since 1900, when the Indian school was built, freight had to be brought from Tofino wharf by flat-bottomed boat, skiff or dugout canoe.

TO SMALL BOAT

Passengers had to go across in the mission boat and then transfer to a small boat. The freight had to be hauled three miles across Clayquot Sound to Kakawis on Meares Island at the foot of 2,000-foot Lone Cone Mountain.

But all that is changed with completion of dock, float and road.

$157,500—If B.C. Approves

School Projects Set To Start in Cowichan

DUNCAN—Construction projects totalling $137,500 under referendum No. 5 will begin within the next three months in the Cowichan school district subject to approval of the provincial education department.

School board chairman Harold Whitfield told trustees at this week's meeting as much work as possible will be done during the "off-season."

Projects at George Bonner, Alexander, Cowichan Station, Crofton, Glenora, Sahtlam, Somenos, Bench and Tansor schools include classrooms, activity rooms and play areas.

Tenders will be called immediately for covered play areas at Alexander and Glenora and an activity room at Bench schools.

A conversion job of a library and reading room at Duncan elementary school can be carried out at a considerable saving, it was stated.

Well Below Cost

The bid of J. L. Peterson, Lake Cowichan, totalling $3,764 plus $1,554 for special shelving is well below the estimated cost of $8,000. Three tenders were submitted.

The second-hand $5,000 Steinway grand piano, valued new at $11,000, will arrive soon. Mrs. Isobel Tarlton said the drive for the piano was sparked many months ago by the Cowichan music festival and local groups contributed. The school board will pay half the amount and eventually will become guardian of the instrument.

The new music room at Cowichan Senior Secondary School, built at $6,200 instead of the original estimated amount of $8,000, will be equipped with acoustic panels costing $129 to muffle the sound more effectively.

Trustee Wilf Peck warned against children playing with matches near district schools. He said fires were discovered twice on the concrete aprons of the Alexander Elementary School and parents should heed the warning on behalf of their children.

He went back to pick up his bag—no suitcase. Someone had stolen it. Loss was valued at $100.

Cowichan Band

Indians to Start Farm Program

More Island News Page 9

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indians are making final strides toward a community farm program and a newly-formed farm development committee under Norman Joe is preparing cultivation plans for 40 acres south of Tzouhalem Road and west of St. Catherine's Indian school.

Indian agent Ron Sampson said the land, idle for many years, is owned by several band members. He feels with proper care the soil will produce two crops.

Plans call for cultivation of the 40 acres and compensation to land holders after expenses, eventually leasing of some of the land or continuation of the project under the supervision of a competent Indian farmer.

RENTAL BASIS

At first band-owned farming equipment will be used under a rental basis and with enough profits at hand new machinery may be purchased.

Mr. Sampson said some financial assistance can be expected from the Indian affairs branch under the economic development vote and possibly under the British Columbia special vote.

FOR INDUSTRIES

The latter is a fund available for B.C. Indians encouraging agriculture, fishing and logging.

To improve the administrative work of the Cowichan Indian council several new committees were formed.

NEW COMMITTEES

They are headed by: Simon Charlie, social and water; Sam Henry, Jr., roads and equipment; Norman Joe, farm development; Dennis Alphonse, community planning.

Committees already in action are housing under Ed Williams; health under Ross Modeste; and welfare under Cowichan Indian Chief Mike Underwood.

Fisheries' Triumph

Gamble Pays Off

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

ALBERNI — Federal fisheries officials have succeeded in their project to establish a new run of pink salmon in Alberni Inlet and the Somass River system.

Already 5,000 pinks are in the Somass River system, heading up the Stamp River and homeing-in on Robertson Creek, the world's largest man-made salmon spawning maternity ward.

The spawning bed which has been set aside for the pinks is already black with spawning salmon. Below the fish ladders at Stamp Falls hundreds more are swimming about waiting to home on Robertson Creek, eight miles and four days of swimming upstream.

By the end of the next week the spawning bed is expected to be filled to capacity with nearly 7,000 pink (Humpback) salmon . . . one pair of salmon for every square yard of gravel.

It is the first time in the world that a brand-new run of pink salmon has been established to a river. Until this month there had been no run of pinks to the Somass system and only a few stray pinks had found their way to rivers in Alberni Inlet.

It means a brand-new commercial fishery is in the making for Barkley Sound at the entrance to Alberni Inlet, and a brand-new sports fishery in Alberni Inlet.

This year sports fishermen took a minimum of 125 pink salmon from Alberni Inlet and probably many more. Commercial trollers also caught pinks in that area for the first time.

The Robertson River project, now proven successful, is another step in fisheries studies that could lead to developments designed to increase Pacific Coast fisheries by as much as five times present production in some areas.

Pink Run Set Up In Inlet

Fisheries officials yesterday didn't see it as an immediate probability, but they agreed their success means it might be feasible to establish off-year pink salmon runs in such areas as the Fraser River and Juan de Fuca Strait, which could mean sports fishermen could have fishing like they have had this year, every year, and there would be plenty for the commercial fishermen as well.

But before such a big project could be undertaken there are other problems to study — ocean survival and the dominance of the one-year cycle pattern. An off-year pink salmon run was established to Jones Creek on the mainland several years ago but the project wasn't continued.

Generally pink salmon run to various rivers every two years—to the East Coast mainly in even years and in Juan de Fuca area and the Fraser in odd years. Upper West Coast runs, although few in numbers, have been in even years.

We stood on the banks of the Stamp River yesterday with federal fisheries Pacific chief biologist Bob MacLaren and watched the pinks running up the fish ladders.

"Isn't it amazing! They home right on Robertson Creek," he said.

Later as we watched the Robertson Creek maternity bed, thick with spawning pinks digging in the gravel, his chest stuck out like a proud father.

His enthusiasm was shared by Forbes Boyd, project engineer. Together they have piloted the $256,000 gamble to a winning project.

It hasn't been easy going.

We, along with fisheries officials from many countries, including Japan, attended the official opening in November, 1960, when enthusiasm was high. Some 1,600,000 eyed eggs had been planted in 1959.

There had been 90 per cent survival of the fry which had gone to sea in April and May of 1960 and were due back in the fall of 1961.

But, by Sept. 10, 1961, only five of an anticipated 10,000 had arrived back. No more were in sight. But Mr. MacLaren had faith.

Last fall only about 250 showed back at Robertson River.

This year's return comes from a plant of 4,500,000 salmon eggs from the Indian River on the mainland, which were eyed at the Puntledge River Hatchery at Courtenay and then placed in the Robertson Creek maternity ward.

This will be the first time pink salmon have actually spawned in Robertson Creek and from the 6,000 pinks (3,000 of them females) it is expected to get 4,500,000 eggs, 90 per cent of which should survive to become fry under the controlled spawning conditions of Robertson Creek.

Up to 10,000,000 more eggs will be taken from the Chekamus River and Indian River on the Mainland and planted as eyed eggs in Robertson Creek, to give a record planting this fall of close to 15,000,000 eggs.

After that it is the intent to let the Robertson Creek pink salmon run look after itself, except for providing ideal spawning conditions.

Appeal Advice

$69,600 Task Tough Job

Sixteen people met Friday in Victoria and were told they had their work cut out for them.

Their job: Raise $69,600 for the 1963 United Appeal.

They are area chairmen, who will direct more than 2,000 individual canvassers in 16 Greater Victoria areas. The house-to-house campaign will run from Oct. 15 to Nov. 3.

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT

Each area chairman will be in charge of from five to eight districts, each with a team captain and about 20 canvassers.

Mrs. T. H. Johns, chief canvasser, said officials are confident they will reach this year's goal of $69,600—15 per cent more than last year's target.

But she says more canvassers are still needed, particularly in the Langford, West Burnside and Wilkinson Road areas. Volunteers may telephone Community Chest officials at EV 5-6708.

Consumer Meet

The Canadian Association of Consumers will meet Monday at 2 p.m. in the music room of Victoria Public Library. Mrs. A. B. Young, provincial president, will lead a discussion on consumers in action.

Double Donations

Fund Seeks Help Of Working Wives

COURTENAY—Working married women must give to the United Appeal at their places of employment and not leave the donating up to their husbands if the drive, with a bigger quota this year, is to be a success.

When only one contributes it means that a household with more than one income ends up giving only a couple of dollars, said M. S. Wharram, campaign chairman.

It is important that the payroll deduction idea spreads also, he declared.

This year there are 19 agencies with quotas totalling $28,161, an increase of two agencies and $2,161 over last year.

The payroll deduction campaign among businesses, the RCAF and industry starts Sept. 30.

Judge Castigates B.C. Divorce Law

NANAIMO — Divorce laws in B.C. are "more than 100 years out of date" Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan told the first legal forum to be held on Vancouver Island at Shoreline Hotel Thursday evening.

To a question from the floor, "Can a woman whose husband has been sentenced to a 20-year term in prison get a divorce?" he answered "no."

"British law of 1858 still applies and has not been changed since that time," he pointed out.

Low Tenders Spur Water Tunnel Job

Construction of the full 5½ miles of Greater Victoria water district tunnel will probably go ahead as the result of unexpectedly low tenders received this week.

Mayor R. B. Wilson, chairman of the district commission, said the bids also indicate a possible long-range reduction in water rates for the area.

NEED THREE YEARS

But it will likely take a giant mechanical mole three years of grinding through 25,700 feet of solid rock before the rate reductions are confirmed by absence of costly difficulties.

The water district increased its wholesale water rates from 11 to 13 cents per 1,000 gallons to offset the cost of the project. Revenue from this boost and other sources has accumulated to approximately $1,400,000 and there is a prospect now of being able to complete the tunnel without borrowing. This could result in a decrease of up to 5 cents per 1,000 gallons in future wholesale rates.

Low tender of $1,571,810 for the 25,700-foot-tunnel job was submitted by Intermountain Construction of Vancouver. The same firm two years ago did the first 3,000 feet of tunnelling for $250,000.

The completed 8½-foot diameter concrete-lined tunnel will link the Sooke Lake water supply system directly with the Goldstream distributing system, eliminating the present 25-mile cement pipe.

Canada Told:

Export Plan 'Crazy'

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States took issue Friday with the Canadian government's proposal to expand Canada's automotive production either by increasing the U.S. market for Canadian automobile factory products or reducing Canadian automotive imports.

"We don't like it and we put up a damn good case against it," said Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges as the joint Canada-U.S. cabinet conference adjourned for two dinner meetings.

PLAN "SCREWY"

Another high U.S. source described the Canadian plan as "screwy" and said "it sounds more like Mexico than Canada."

C. M. Drury, defence production minister, later conceded in talks with reporters that he had failed to make his case for the Canadian plan during closed-door sessions of the economic and trade conference. But he said he would return to the task of trying to persuade the Americans the plan had merit.

PAYMENTS BROKEN

"If the U.S. takes the position there should be no reduction in sales to Canada or no increase in sales to the U.S. then there is no possibility of anything being done on our balance of payments problem."

Canada, he said, has a trade deficit with the U.S. amounting to some $850,000,000 a year. Canada had to do something to reduce this deficit and the step that had to be taken would be "something less than reciprocity" in trade with the U.S. Otherwise, Canada would not be able to achieve a reduction.

Under the Canadian manufacturing expansion plan, as outlined by Drury, the U.S., as Canada's top market, either would have to open its doors wider to Canadian manufactured goods or Canada would have to impose restrictions on imports from the U.S.

Ontario Teen-Ager

Search Army Of 10,000 Out Today

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (UPI)—Search organizers hope to enlist an army of 10,000 volunteers today to comb the Bowmanville area for missing 13-year-old Noreen Greenley.

The girl disappeared last Saturday night while walking the short distance between the home of a girlfriend and her house in nearby Maple Grove. The search to date has failed to turn up a clue and her father, Harvey Greenley, believes "someone has got her."

Some 400 volunteers, aided by two aircraft, combed a 15-square mile area Thursday in a driving rainstorm and an equal number turned out Friday.

TWO GROUPS

The hunt is being organized by the Ontario provincial police and the emergency measures organization.

Workers at the General Motors plant in Oshawa, where the girl's father is employed, are expected to turn out in large numbers along with Boy Scouts and "almost every resident of Maple Grove." The father hopes to obtain hunting dogs to aid in the search.

BIG MILL POND

A pump was used as searchers began to drain a 30-acre mill pond near Lake Ontario.

The girl was last seen after leaving her friend's home and her father believes she was abducted by a stranger in a car. Her mother described her as "quiet and shy" and said she would never accept a ride with a stranger.

Baby Saved

Phone Girl Heroine

OTTAWA (CP) — A panic-stricken mother saved her infant son's life by following instructions from a telephone operator on how to administer artificial respiration.

The mother, Mrs. Leo Sabourin of Ottawa, discovered her five-month-old son Christopher apparently lifeless in his crib with his face pressed against a plastic bib.

She carried the infant to a downstairs telephone, dialed operator Mrs. Judy Dallaire, 21, for help and followed instructions from the alert operator, who, from memory, gave her a step-by-step procedure for mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration.

Mrs. Dallaire simultaneously summoned help, but by the time it arrived, the child already was regaining consciousness.

Ottawa Word Coming

The Social Credit government expects an announcement from Ottawa on the Columbia River development immediately after the Sept. 30 election, Recreation Minister Westwood told a rally of 25 spectators in Ladysmith last night.

Regarding the Peace River project he said "B.C. will be faced with a blackout by 1968" if the development does not proceed.

"Extra power is urgently needed to develop B.C. natural resources," he said, "besides providing the cheapest power development in the world."

By TERRY HAMMOND

Premier Bennett told the biggest and roughest meeting of the 1963 election campaign in Victoria's Royal Theatre last night that, if any B.C. political party has integrity, it is his.

He lashed out at Tory Leader Fulton for the appointment to a judgeship of one of his former law partners and said Liberals and Conservatives had governed B.C. by secret orders-in-council while the socialists stood idly by and let them do it.

"To keep this secret is a crime and a disgrace against democracy.

"In 22 years representing South Okanagan my business has not done one cent of business with the government departments — not one cent," he thundered.

SPECIAL LIST

He said previous governments had allocated business by special list while his had eliminated patronage.

His speech was constantly interrupted by hecklers among the 1,350 people who all but filled the theatre. The crowd was about 300 smaller than at his Victoria rally in 1960, but that was his final pre-election meeting.

NEVER WILL

"We have never yielded to a pressure group yet and as long as I am premier we never will," he said.

"That's what Sommers told me the other day," shouted a heckler, referring to the former forest minister convicted on bribery charges in 1958.

The premier ignored the sally.

He said the government has appointed people to various jobs without thought to their political beliefs.

SOME GOOD

"Yes, down the list the odd Social Crediter has been given a job because, believe it or not, there are some good Social Crediters."

It was the premier's fourth speech of the campaign and the third in which he has made no major pledges of new projects or policies. In West Vancouver Wednesday he said

Joint Moon Shot Urged by JFK

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — President Kennedy suggested Friday that the Soviet Union and the United States combine talents in a joint expedition to the moon.

"Why . . . should man's first flight to the moon be a matter of national competition?" he asked in a policy speech before the United Nations General Assembly.

"Why should the United States and the Soviet Union, in preparing for such expeditions, become involved in immense duplications of research, construction and expenditure?"

NEW JOINT EFFORTS

Kennedy made the moon-flight suggestion in calling for new joint efforts by the two big powers in the space field.

He said he was encouraged by the statement of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to the assembly Thursday on banning nuclear weapons in space.

AGREES WITH PEARSON

He also echoed the view of Canada's Prime Minister Pearson Thursday that the UN force should be kept in The Congo past the end of this year.

And, apparently referring to Canada and the Scandinavian countries, he said he hoped that "the recent initiative of several members in preparing standby peace forces for UN call will encourage similar commitments by others. This nation remains ready to provide logistic and other material support."

After the speech, Kennedy and Pearson were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Secretary-General U Thant. The 50

Mme. Nhu Prefers Mao

Nikita Chief Peril

ATHENS (AP) — Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu said Friday Soviet Premier Khrushchev "is cleverer and therefore more dangerous" than Red China's boss, Mao Tse-tung.

"I have nothing to say about President Kennedy, but I think Mrs. Kennedy is glamorous and should be admired."

The chic, politically powerful first lady of South Viet Nam summed up her views on these world figures in two interviews, 500 miles apart.

* * *

Mme. Nhu discussed the Communist chieftains at the close of a nine-day visit to Belgrade and made her remark about the Kennedys under questioning of Greek reporters on her arrival by Yugoslav airliner in Athens for an overnight visit.

The petite 38-year-old sister-in-law and official hostess of President Ngo Dinh Diem said the Khrushchev type of coexistence is not genuine.

* * *

"It is only a form of subversion," she said. "Khrushchev wants world domination just like Mao Tse-tung. But while Mao is loud, beating the drums, Khrushchev pursues his aims quietly. The means of Khrushchev might succeed much easier than those of Mao."

Gromyko Pleased

Speech Praised By Reds, West

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Delegates from Communist countries as well as the free world Friday reacted warmly to President Kennedy's speech to the United Nations General Assembly.

"It was a very good speech," said Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko. "It was conciliatory and it seems to give hope for further agreement."

Sir Patrick Dean, head of the British delegation, called the address "moving and inspiring."

Ambassador Muhammad Zafrullah Khan of Pakistan, last year's president of the General Assembly, said: "This is a real leadership speech . . . President Kennedy is a good speaker but this speech is his best."

Ambassador B. N. Chakravarty of India said the speech was "excellent, effective."

"He has given us lines to follow and much food for thought," he said, "especially through those passages concerning disarmament and international trade . . ."

In Moscow last night Soviet news media reported at length President Kennedy's General Assembly speech but omitted mention of his suggestion for a joint Russian-American expedition to the moon.

Western observers interpreted the omission as an indication that the Soviet Union would react to Kennedy's suggestion in cautious fashion.

In principle, the Soviet Union has endorsed the idea of joint American-Soviet space co-operation.

Pianist Green

Green Tickles Ivories

VANCOUVER (CP)—Howard Green, former Conservative external affairs minister, is providing piano stylings to a song-and-patter team of provincial election candidates.

The team of Gladys Chong and William Dronsfield, seeking election in Vancouver East, sings such songs as You Were Meant for me.

Mr. Green plays It's a Long Way to Tipperary, the only tune he knows, and provides the commercial.

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Underlying President Kennedy's dramatic proposal for a joint U.S.-Soviet moon expedition may be a feeling that perhaps the United States going it alone cannot beat the Russians to the lunar surface.

The suggestion, made before the United Nations Friday, comes at a time when the slip is showing noticeably on U.S. plans for manned and unmanned exploration of the moon. Public enthusiasm for the project apparently is waning, costs are spiralling and the U.S. Congress no longer is rubber stamping space agency money requests.

* * *

Some officials who are doing the spade work at Cape Canaveral for the lunar landing effort expressed surprise at the president's proposal. They agreed that a combined U.S.-Russian effort would help world tensions, but they were disappointed at the indication Kennedy is ready to abandon the great national goal of being first on the moon.

When Kennedy declared the United States in the race in May, 1961, with a target of landing astronauts on the moon before 1970, there was general national enthusiasm. A few sceptics said the president's decision was rash, made hastily in the wake of Russia's achievement of orbiting the first man. They noted Russia had a tremendous lead with superior rocket power.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration rallied to Kennedy's cause. They said a manned landing on the moon is possible
